Catalog Description
This course addresses the structural and cultural aspects of language use with focus on dual-language communication involving Chinese and English. Interlingually, the course will explore given structural differences between Chinese and English, including aspects of speech habits (phonology), word-formation (morphology), vocabulary (lexicon), phraseology, and sentence structure (syntax); interculturally, the course will examine how dual-language speakers (and translators) negotiate and shape Chinese and English in the dynamic of time-and-place communication, including the navigation of different discourse styles, conventions governing idiom, coherence, or logic, and assumptions about gender relations, and power and status that determine who speaks when, who gets interrupted, and how rhetoric and voice are expressed in code switching and mixing between Chinese and English. In identifying rule-governed variance and strategies used to mediate differences in communication, students will also develop an articulate understanding of how the two languages function in their separate and yet intertwined evolution.

CLA 30662 - Performing Greek Tragedy (3 cr)

General

Course Title
Performing Greek Tragedy

Catalog Description
This course will examine the cultural and historical context for the performance of tragedy in ancient Athens. To understand this context, we will study and recreate the entire experience of a Greek tragedy including its role in the political and religious life of ancient Athens. This course will involve active participation of all students at various levels. Students will research the specific context for performing Greek tragedy and then determine how to implement this research in a real way. This course will ultimately reproduce an ancient Greek tragedy as well as the civic institutions (the choosing of magistrates, liturgists, and the reenactment of a public festival) that surrounded Greek tragedy. Not all students will be required to act, but all students will be required to actively participate in recreating the tragedy. There will be many roles (non-acting ones as well) for students to help in understanding, organizing and presenting the larger context of tragedy. Students will be try to engage with tragedy in a waythat an ancient Athenian may have (on a political and cultic level) and what it meant for tragedy to be part of the public life of the Athenian community.

JPN 26100 - Special Topics In Japanese Culture (3 cr)

General

Course Title
Special Topics In Japanese Culture

Catalog Description
This course will examine the technological innovations that reveal contemporary Japanese culture's complex relationship with reality, both real and virtual. Students will consider how advancements since World War II in fields such as robotics, transportation, architecture, entertainment, self-defense, and medicine have positioned Japan as a World Leader in cutting-edge technology. From this vantage point, the class will look beyond the Mushroom Kingdoms and robot dinosaur hotels to discover how education, family relations, workplace culture, religion and social circumstances play a vital role in understanding technology's place in modern Japan. This course is taught entirely in English. Students should be capable of performing university-level writing and analysis and completed ENGL 12000.

JPN 30500 - Special Topics in Modern Japanese Culture (3 cr)

General

Course Title
Special Topics in Modern Japanese Culture

Catalog Description
This course will examine topics in Modern Japanese Culture. Students will engage with translated fiction, film, anime, and manga and consider ways in which these forms of creative expression define the contemporary Japanese experience. Students will compare and contrast these pieces of media in either an ongoing journal project or a term research paper, depending on the subject of the course offered. As a Writing Intensive course, at least 60% of the final grade will be attributed to writing projects.

General

Course Title
Compar Std Ee Cinema: Polish, Czech, Russ., So. Slavic. Discuss Cultural, Politcl., Historic Aspects

Catalog Description
The course is a comparative study of cultural, political, and historical aspects of Russian, Polish, Czechoslovakian, Romanian, and East German cinema as a visual art form. The course examines samples of East European cinema addressing a respective country's history and social conditions starting with World War II time and covering both the Communist era and post-Communist period. By the end of the course, students will acquire critical tools to provide an informed verbal and written analysis of East European films as cultural texts.

RUSS 29700 - The Russian Urban Novel in English Translation (3 cr)

General

Course Title
The Russian Urban Novel in English Translation

Catalog Description
This course investigates the interaction of the theme of the City and the genre of the novel through the analysis of texts in which the City is not merely a background but rather an active character, exercising a determining influence on the fate and psychic stability of its population. Concentrating on Russian novels, but in a comparative context, the image of the City is traced thorugh changing historical periods and literary styles in an attempt to discover how the specific literary and physical characteristics of each city affect the formal structure of the novels that depict it. We will see how Dostoevsky built on Dickens' Oliver Twist and Balzac's Le Pere Goriot to create a more complex form of ""Romantic Realism"" in Crime and Punishment. We continue with Belyi's Peterburg, which Nabokov considered the most important modernist novel after Joyce's Ulysses, and Zamiatin's We, the urban anti-utopia that was a source for 1984 and Brave New World. The course will conclude either with Invisible Man, by Ralph Ellison, who declared Dostoevsky to be his literary ancestor, or with Camus' La Chute [The Fall], which is a direct response to Notes from

Computer Science Department

Overview

The Department of Computer Science offers a comprehensive Bachelor of Arts degree in computer science. The core objectives of our curriculum are to:

- Provide a broad base in the design, implementation and application of computer software systems; a firm grasp of the essentials of computer architecture; and a solid foundation in the theoretical aspects of computer science;
- Prepare undergraduates for life after graduation in careers in business, government, and the computer industry or in the pursuit of graduate studies, and;
- Expose students to the excitement and challenge of computing technologies and theory through a variety of advanced topics courses and close participation with faculty in cutting-edge research.

What can I do with my degree in Computer Science?

The Department of Computer Science provides students with outstanding preparation both for employment as computer professionals and for graduate study. Students use a spectrum of programming languages and machine architectures and are expected to construct creative solutions to challenging problems in a variety of contexts. In addition, students are educated in the mathematics of computer science — the theoretical foundations that support current technology and will guide its future development.

Learning Outcomes: Computer Science BA

1. Demonstrate an understanding of the basic foundations and relevant applications of mathematics and statistics particularly those branches related to computer science.
2. Demonstrate an understanding of the overarching relationships between hardware and software i.e. computer architectures software systems and operating systems.
3. Demonstrate knowledge of the theory of computation and algorithms (for example. formal languages Turing machines etc.).
4. Display knowledge of at least two area disciplines within computer science (for example. artificial intelligence computer theory formal methods etc.).
5. Be proficient in writing and reading programs sufficient to implement and study algorithms.
6. Be able to apply principles of design and analysis in creating substantive projects involving programs and algorithmic design and have experience working in teams on projects of moderately realistic scope.
7. Be able to communicate technical ideas effectively both in writing and in oral presentations.
8. Demonstrate an understanding of the ethical concerns typically arising in the context of computing.
9. Be competitive when applying to graduate schools should they so choose.
10. Graduate prepared to continue to learn throughout their careers keeping up.to.date in a quickly developing field. In particular, they should be able to read and assimilate scientific and technical material independently. from textbooks, journal articles, and other level-appropriate sources.

AND

Earn a minimum GPA of 2.0

General Education Requirements - Common Core

Type
Completion Requirement

Fulfill ALL of the following requirements:

Earn at least 6 credits from the following:

- Required Core English Composition

Students who receive an “exemption” for ENGL 12000 or for a course in English Comp 2 are deemed to have fulfilled English Composition 1 or 2, respectively.

AND

Earn at least 3 credits from the following:

- Required Core Mathematical and Quantitative Reasoning

Some courses in this categories carry more than 3 credits (the “STEM variant” courses). Students who elect to take these courses may apply only three credits towards fulfilling the Common Core.

AND

Earn at least 3 credits from the following:

- Required Core Life and Physical Sciences

Some courses in this categories carry more than 3 credits (the “STEM variant” courses). Students who elect to take these courses may apply only three credits towards fulfilling the Common Core.

AND

Earn at least 3 credits from the following:

- Flexible Core Scientific World

Some courses in this categories carry more than 3 credits (the “STEM variant” courses). Students who elect to take these courses may apply only three credits towards fulfilling the Common Core.

AND

Earn at least 3 credits from the following:

- Flexible Core Creative Expression

AND

Earn at least 3 credits from the following:

AND

Earn at least 3 credits from the following:

- Flexible Core Individual and Society Social Science

AND

Earn at least 3 credits from the following:

- Flexible Core Individual and Society Humanities

Additional Comments:
Students may take no more than two courses from one department or program to fulfill categories Common Core.

Transfer Students

- Transfer students who have earned an AA/AS degree from an accredited institution, including CUNY, and who matriculated in fall 2013 and after will have fulfilled the Common Core.

- For all other CUNY transfer students, any unmet Common Core requirements must be completed while matriculated at Hunter.
- Non-CUNY transfer students without an AA/AS degree should confer with their adviser to determine whether they have met CCC requirements.

2nd Degree Students

- Students who have earned a baccalaureate degree from an accredited institution are exempt from the General Education requirements

Degree Requirements - College Option/Hunter Focus

Type
Completion Requirement

Earn at least 12 credits
The Hunter Focus consists of 12 credits total. The composition of these credits will vary depending on the student's matriculation status and language proficiency. All students are required to complete the Foreign Language requirement; after that is met, students begin Concentrated Study.

Exceptions:

- Students in the School of Nursing may fulfill their entire 12 credits of Hunter Focus by taking three "STEM variant" science courses in addition to the STEM courses used to fulfill the Common Core.
- Students with a joint major in Education may fulfill their entire 12 credits with courses in Education.

Hunter Focus: Foreign Language

Students must attain fourth-semester proficiency in a foreign language. For students with no prior language courses, this proficiency typically consists of completing four courses or a total of 12 credits. Students who have prior language courses, including those from high school, should consult an adviser. Students may apply only one course at each level (Elementary level 1, Elementary level 2, Intermediate level 3, and Intermediate level 4) toward the Hunter Focus. Intensive courses can be used to satisfy the two-course sequence at the Elementary and at the Intermediate levels.

Hunter Focus: Concentrated Study

Once students have completed the Foreign Language requirement, any credits remaining from the 12 required for the Hunter Focus will be used on Concentrated Study. Concentrated Study refers to courses that fulfill requirements for a declared minor, a second major or a certificate. The number of credits required for Concentrated Study ranges from 0-12 and is determined by the number of credits in a foreign language a student must take.

CREDITS OF FOREIGN LANGUAGE NEEDED	CREDITS OF CONCENTRATED STUDY NEEDED
3	9
6	6
9	3*

Fulfill ALL of the following requirements:*

For students who matriculated prior to fall 2019, these three credits are waived.

For students who matriculated in fall 2019 or after, and who do not also complete a second major, minor, or certificate program, these three credits shall be from a course, at the 200-level or above, on a topic related to the language used for the Foreign Language requirement, in the target language or in English translation.*

Transfer Students

All transfer students must complete the Hunter Focus. For students who first matriculated in an associate program, the number of credits required in the Hunter Focus varies with the number of credits transferred.

CREDITS/DEGREES TRANSFERRED	CREDITS/REQUIRED
Fewer than 30	12
30 or more, without an AA/AS degree	9
AA/AS degree	6

Students who first matriculate in a baccalaureate program must complete 12 credits of Hunter Focus. Any "College Option" credits completed at another CUNY senior college will be applied to the Hunter Focus.

Hunter Focus: Foreign Language

Transfer students must reach or work toward fourth-semester proficiency in a foreign language. The number of credits needed to complete the Foreign Language requirement is determined by the student's transfer status, as defined above, and language proficiency at the time of matriculation. Students who have prior language courses, including those from high school, should consult an adviser.

Hunter Focus: Concentrated Study

Once transfer students have completed the Foreign Language requirement, any credits remaining from the Hunter Focus will be used on Concentrated Study as described above.

2nd Degree Students

- Students who have earned a baccalaureate degree from an accredited institution are exempt from the General Education requirements

Degree Requirements - Pluralism and Diversity

Type
Completion Requirement

Fulfill ALL of the following requirements:

Earn at least 3 credits from the following:
- Pluralism and Diversity Requirement – Group A

A course focusing on scholarship about major practical or theoretical issues (e.g., artistic, economic, geographic, literary, political, scientific or social) that emerge from, are reflected in or are principally derived from the historical conditions, perspectives and/or intellectual traditions of non-European societies, particularly those of Africa, Asia, Latin America or those indigenous to the Americas.

AND

Earn at least 3 credits from the following:
- Pluralism and Diversity Requirement – Group B

A course focusing on scholarship about major practical or theoretical issues (e.g., artistic, economic, geographic, literary, political, scientific or social) that emerge from, are reflected in or are principally derived from the historical conditions, perspectives, immigrant experiences and/or intellectual traditions of one or more of the following groups in the United States of America: African Americans, Asian Americans, Latino Americans and Native Americans.

AND

Earn at least 3 credits from the following:

- Pluralism and Diversity Requirement – Group C

A course focusing on scholarship about major practical or theoretical issues (e.g., artistic, economic, geographic, literary, political, scientific or social) that emerge from, are reflected in or are principally derived from the historical conditions, perspectives and/or intellectual traditions of women and/or issues of gender or sexual orientation.

AND

Earn at least 3 credits from the following:

- Pluralism and Diversity Requirement – Group D

A course focusing on scholarship about major practical or theoretical issues (e.g., artistic, economic, geographic, literary, political, scientific or social) that emerge from, are reflected in or are principally derived from the historical conditions, perspectives and/or intellectual traditions of Europe, including the ways in which pluralism and diversity have been addressed.

Additional Comments:
Students must complete four courses designated for the Pluralism and Diversity Requirement, one from each of four categories. The four categories of Pluralism and Diversity focus on major practical or theoretical issues that emerge from, are reflected in, or are principally derived from the historical conditions, perspectives, and/or intellectual traditions of the following:

A. Non-European societies, particularly those of Africa, Asia, Latin America, or those indigenous to the Americas;

B. One or more of the following groups in the US: African Americans, Asian Americans, Latino Americans, and Native Americans;

C. Women and/or issues of gender or sexual orientation;

D. Europe, including ways in which pluralism and diversity have been addressed.

Any one course with a Pluralism and Diversity designation can satisfy only one Pluralism and Diversity category but may also fulfill any other requirement.

Transfer Students

Transfer students must take at least two courses designated for different categories of the Pluralism and Diversity requirement. The number of courses required in Pluralism and Diversity is determined by the number of credits transferred.

CREDITS TRANSFERRED	COURSES REQUIRED
Fewer than 31	4
31 or more	2

Any one course with a Pluralism and Diversity designation can only satisfy one Pluralism and Diversity category but may also fulfill any other requirement.

2nd Degree Students

- Students who have earned a baccalaureate degree from an accredited institution are exempt from the General Education requirements

Degree Requirements - Writing Intensive

Type
Completion Requirement

Complete at least 1 course in the following course sets:

- Writing Intensive

Transfer Students

Transfer students must take at least one Writing Intensive course, designated with a “W” in the catalog, at Hunter College. The number of Writing Intensive courses required is determined by the number of credits transferred.

CREDITS TRANSFERRED	"W" COURSES REQUIRED
Fewer than 30	3
31-59	2
60 or more	1

Note: Specific sections of courses containing significant writing are listed with a W designation in the Schedule of Classes. Please note that not all sections of a course are necessarily offered with significant writing. To satisfy the Writing Requirement a section designated as W in the Schedule of Classes must be taken.

2nd Degree Students

- Students who have earned a baccalaureate degree from an accredited institution are exempt from the General Education requirements

Major Requirements - Overall

Type
Completion Requirement

Earn at least 40 credits

Earn a minimum grade of C

- The Computer Science major consists of 40-64 credits in CSCI and MATH/STAT courses.
- Based on placement exams or transferred courses, students may place into some more advanced Mathematics and Statistics courses without taking Hunter College prerequisites.
- Students may obtain Credit by Examination for CSCI 12700, CSCI 13500 AND CSCI 15000.
- Please note that the department of Computer Science does not accept P/NC grades in courses required for the Major.
- MATH, STAT, BIOL and CHEM courses can be counted for credit in more than one program.

Major Requirements - Required Math Courses

Type
Completion Requirement

Complete ALL of the following Courses:

- MATH 10100 - Algebra for College Students
  OR MATH 101EN - Algebra College Stud-Enhanced
- MATH 10150 - Mastery of Symbolic Computation
- MATH 12400 - College Algebra and Trigonometry
  OR MATH 12500 - Precalculus
  OR MATH 12550 - Precalculus with Workshop
- MATH 15000 - Calculus I
  OR MATH 15500 - Calculus 2

- MATH14000 Mathematical Reasoning Wksp- Mathematical Reasoning Workshop unless students earn a grade of B- or above in MATH12550 Precalculus with Workshop.

Major Requirements - Computer Science Concentration

Type

Catalog Description
This course is designed as a consequence of developing a simple programming language to express counting problems. To count, one simply runs the program. But writing the program will help create a mental representation of what is that we are really counting, which is essential. By working out several examples, students will learn the basic principle of how to count by themselves, and drop the programming aspect. No mathematical background or knowledge of programming is required.

CSCI 10N02 - Introduction to Computer Science for Digital Arts (3 cr)

General

Course Title
Introduction to Computer Science for Digital Arts

Catalog Description
An intense 3 credit project-based introduction to computer science for digital arts, aimed at motivated and hard-working studio art and film & media students. Prior programming or CS background is not required. Key computer science and programming concepts will be taught through hands-on studio work with interactive visuals "sketches" in P5JS (Processing for JavaScript), as well as lecture. Subsequently, essential C++ will be introduced in a Linux environment. This experimental minor elective course can become an entry to a CS minor, or, with a MATH125 co-requisite, to a CS major.

General

Course Title
Introduction to Computer Science

Catalog Description
This course presents an overview of computer science (CS) with an emphasis on problem-solving and computational thinking through ‘coding’: computer programming for beginners. Other topics include: organization of hardware, software, and how information is structured on contemporary computing devices. This course is pre-requisite to several introductory core courses in the CS Major. The course is also required for the CS minor. MATH 12500 or higher is strongly recommended as a co-req for intended Majors.

CSCI 13200 - Practical Unix and Programming with Lab (3 cr)

General

Course Title
Practical Unix and Programming with Lab

Catalog Description
This is an introducton to elementary computer programming and the UNIX operating system. Students are taught fundamental programming principles that can be applied to any porgramming language, but Perl is the language they are taught in this course. Students are given a conceptual overiew of the UNIX operating system and programming environment, and a practical introduction to shell programming, and the use of UNIX filters and utilities. This is a pragmatic course with an emphasis on skills acquisition; students will learn how to get things done quickly and easily in a UNIX environment. This course teaches students the principles underlying the use of the UNIX operating system. It directs the student to various resources that will enable him or her to learn more about UNIX independently. It covers the most important UNIX concepts, including users, groups, privileges and permissions, shells, files and file sytems, input-output and redirection, environments, and program execution. It covers the basic of shell programming and examines shell characteristics common to all UNIX shells. It introduces computer programming, first through shell programm

Course Title
Topics in Creative Problem Solving

Catalog Description
Faculty supervised workshop that meets ten times per semester. Each workshop explores a different applied topic in computer science. An undergraduate peer leader presents slides, guides discussions, and engages the participants in activities that emphasize collaborative problem solving. This course explores the role of teamwork and in class activities to improve student retention, with particular interest in underrepresented populations in computer science.

Course Title
Programming Methods

Catalog Description
This course focuses on the program design process and practical programming skills, building on the previous programming experience from CSCI 12700. Material will focus on more advanced topics such as structures for efficiently storing, sorting and accessing data, recursion, and code reuse. Program development and maintenance skills including debugging, testing, and documentation will also be taught. Basic proficiency in Python programming is assumed. The course may be counted towards the minor in Computer Science. It is open to Computer Science majors, but not for major credit.

CSCI 23200 - Relational Databases and SQL Programming, with Lab (3 cr)

General

Course Title
Relational Databases and SQL Programming, with Lab

Catalog Description
This is an introduction to elementary database concepts and SQL (Structure Query Language), the standard language for communicating with most database systems. This is a pragmatic course with an emphasis on skills acquisition; students will learn how to get things done quickly and easily in a database environment. This course teaches students the principles underlying the use of SQL to retrieve and manipulate data from large databases. Students learn fundamental principles that can be applied to any database environment that supports SQL, but the PERL API for MY-SQL is the software planned for instruction here. Students are given a conceptual overview of the mathematics underlying relational databases and the UML (Univeral Modeling Language) framework for database design, as well as a practical introduciton to database systems, and the ways SQL retrieves and organizes information from them. For large, pre-existing databases without customized interfaces (including many under development by biologists here at Hunter), SQL is either the standard access language or a more flexible and incisive alternative. The primary objective is to enable student

CSCI 49370 - Graphical User Interface Programming (3 cr)

General

Course Title
Graphical User Interface Programming

Catalog Description
Course is based on the GTK+ library. GTK+ is a free, high-level library for creating graphical user interfaces that works on many UNIX-like platforms (including the Macintosh) and Windows®. It is released under the GNU Library General Public License, so that programs developed with it can be freely shared according to the terms of the license. The revised course introduced the general principles of window-based programming, including events and signals, widgets and windows, graphical concepts, asynchronous I/O, drag-and-drop, and more. Students will work on both the Windows and Linux platforms. GTK+ is built on top of the GDK library. The GDK library provides an interface, on UNIX platforms, to the underlying X-windows system. On Windows® platforms, the GDK provides the same functionality but does so via calls to the Win32 API. Therefore, GTK+ is shielded from the differences in the underlying platforms so that, for the most part, programs written against it can run on different platforms. This is not quite the case in practice, as there still are differences, and students in this class will learn them.

Curriculum and Teaching Department

Overview

Welcome to the Department of Curriculum and Teaching at Hunter College, the home of a wide variety of graduate and undergraduate programs in education.

As part of the largest department in the Hunter College School of Education, Curriculum & Teaching programs prepare teachers and other school personnel in the areas of Childhood Education (elementary), Adolescent Education (secondary), Early Childhood Education, Literacy, Bilingual Education, Teaching English to Speakers of Other Languages (TESOL–K-12 and Adult), Creative Arts Education, Computer Science Education and Administration & Supervision. Our primary mission is to prepare teachers and school leaders for any education environment, although we are particularly committed to preparing teachers for the challenges of public education in an urban setting.

The Department of Curriculum and Teaching houses the majority of programs and courses in the Hunter College School of Education, working closely with departments in the School of Arts & Sciences to train teachers in content area knowledge, and in the methods of teaching such subject areas as English/Language Arts, Social Studies, World Languages, Music, ESL, Bilingual Education, Math, and Science. Our programs assist future teachers and administrators to be thoughtful and knowledgeable educators by advocating for their students' academic and social well being. We also advocate approaches to education that promote social justice in schools, local communities and the broader society.

EDUC 21000 - Understanding Systems: Interdisciplinary Perspectives on Youth and Families in NYC (3 cr)

General

Course Title
Understanding Systems: Interdisciplinary Perspectives on Youth and Families in NYC

Catalog Description
In this honors seminar, first-year students are introduced to the complex systems that shape the lives of children, youth, and families in New York City. This course challenges students to think critically about youth development in the context of intersectional identities, systemic gaps and assets, community strengths, historical contexts, and social movements. Through the lens of community-engaged social work and education, students will be immersed in experiential learning. The course combines fieldwork, storytelling, civic engagement, and interdisciplinary learning. By the end of the semester, students develop a community project proposal addressing a specific issue facing NYC youth and families, laying the groundwork for their spring advocacy partnerships.

Dance Department

Overview

The Hunter College Dance Department offers an opportunity to pursue a BA degree in dance with in the context of a strong liberal arts education. From a campus in the heart of New York City, the dance major or minor student has the unique opportunity of interfacing with many professional dance companies, choreographers and researchers who live and work in New York. The contemporary dance-based curriculum provides the student with the opportunities to pursue careers in performance, choreography, teaching, arts administration and production and is unique in its focus on individual creativity and reflection. All dance majors are required to choreograph, perform, and participate actively in the close-knit artistic community. The curriculum is enriched by community outreach performances, repertory classes with New York-based choreographers, guest artist workshops, and internship opportunities. Through our collaboration with Hunter's School of Education, students can also pursue BA or BA/MA degrees in Dance Education, leading to initial certification as a teacher in New York State.

What can I do with my degree in Dance?

Our curriculum provides students with a strong foundation that can lead to professional careers for performers, creators, scholars, educators, and arts advocates.

Learning Outcomes: Dance BA

1. Perform effectively exercises and combinations from various genres of dance.
2. Demonstrate the ability to create a dance work from origin to a complete piece.
3. Perform a dance in a public dance performance with artistic integrity and personal commitment.
4. Demonstrate an understanding of musical analysis of rhythm and music for choreography.
5. Demonstrate that they have a historical understanding of dances in their cultural context.
6. Understand the theatrical processes required to produce a performance in dance.

Degree Requirements - College Option/Hunter Focus

Type
Completion Requirement

Earn at least 12 credits
The Hunter Focus consists of 12 credits total. The composition of these credits will vary depending on the student's matriculation status and language proficiency. All students are required to complete the Foreign Language requirement; after that is met, students begin Concentrated Study.

Exceptions:

- Students in the School of Nursing may fulfill their entire 12 credits of Hunter Focus by taking three "STEM variant" science courses in addition to the STEM courses used to fulfill the Common Core.
- Students with a joint major in Education may fulfill their entire 12 credits with courses in Education.

Hunter Focus: Foreign Language

Students must attain fourth-semester proficiency in a foreign language. For students with no prior language courses, this proficiency typically consists of completing four courses or a total of 12 credits. Students who have prior language courses, including those from high school, should consult an adviser. Students may apply only one course at each level (Elementary level 1, Elementary level 2, Intermediate level 3, and Intermediate level 4) toward the Hunter Focus. Intensive courses can be used to satisfy the two-course sequence at the Elementary and at the Intermediate levels.

Hunter Focus: Concentrated Study

Once students have completed the Foreign Language requirement, any credits remaining from the 12 required for the Hunter Focus will be used on Concentrated Study. Concentrated Study refers to courses that fulfill requirements for a declared minor, a second major or a certificate. The number of credits required for Concentrated Study ranges from 0-12 and is determined by the number of credits in a foreign language a student must take.

3	9

For students who matriculated prior to fall 2019, these three credits are waived.*

For students who matriculated in fall 2019 or after, and who do not also complete a second major, minor, or certificate program, these three credits shall be from a course, at the 200-level or above, on a topic related to the language used for the Foreign Language requirement, in the target language or in English translation.*

Transfer Students

All transfer students must complete the Hunter Focus. For students who first matriculated in an associate program, the number of credits required in the Hunter Focus varies with the number of credits transferred.

CREDITS/DEGREES TRANSFERRED	CREDITS/REQUIRED
Fewer than 30	12
30 or more, without an AA/AS degree	9
AA/AS degree	6

Students who first matriculate in a baccalaureate program must complete 12 credits of Hunter Focus. Any "College Option" credits completed at another CUNY senior college will be applied to the Hunter Focus.

Hunter Focus: Foreign Language

Transfer students must reach or work toward fourth-semester proficiency in a foreign language. The number of credits needed to complete the Foreign Language requirement is determined by the student's transfer status, as defined above, and language proficiency at the time of matriculation. Students who have prior language courses, including those from high school, should consult an adviser.

Hunter Focus: Concentrated Study

Once transfer students have completed the Foreign Language requirement, any credits remaining from the Hunter Focus will be used on Concentrated Study as described above.

2nd Degree Students

- Students who have earned a baccalaureate degree from an accredited institution are exempt from the General Education requirements

Degree Requirements - Pluralism and Diversity

Type
Completion Requirement

Fulfill ALL of the following requirements:

Earn at least 3 credits from the following:
- Pluralism and Diversity Requirement – Group A

A course focusing on scholarship about major practical or theoretical issues (e.g., artistic, economic, geographic, literary, political, scientific or social) that emerge from, are reflected in or are principally derived from the historical conditions, perspectives and/or intellectual traditions of non-European societies, particularly those of Africa, Asia, Latin America or those indigenous to the Americas.

AND

Earn at least 3 credits from the following:

- Pluralism and Diversity Requirement – Group B

A course focusing on scholarship about major practical or theoretical issues (e.g., artistic, economic, geographic, literary, political, scientific or social) that emerge from, are reflected in or are principally derived from the historical conditions, perspectives, immigrant experiences and/or intellectual traditions of one or more of the following groups in the United States of America: African Americans, Asian Americans, Latino Americans and Native Americans.

AND

Earn at least 3 credits from the following:

- Pluralism and Diversity Requirement – Group C

A course focusing on scholarship about major practical or theoretical issues (e.g., artistic, economic, geographic, literary, political, scientific or social) that emerge from, are reflected in or are principally derived from the historical conditions, perspectives and/or intellectual traditions of women and/or issues of gender or sexual orientation.

DAN 25281 - Special Topics: DEL Curriculum Development (3 cr)

General

Course Title
Special Topics: DEL Curriculum Development

Catalog Description
In this six-module asynchronous course, participants delve into the key components of lesson plan and curriculum design using the elements of dance and the DEL Framework: Body, Effort, Space, Relationship. Participants learn how to develop scaffolded, developmentally appropriate, and standards-based dance learning activities that draw connections to dance artistry, choreography, theme-based learning, arts integration, and performance. Participants learn how to design dynamic lessons that align student learning objectives with content and assessments. By the end of the course, participants will write an original six-lesson dance unit to share with their peers, incorporating the elements of dance and dance skills.

DAN 25282 - Special Topics: DEL Foundation (3 cr)

General

Course Title
Special Topics: DEL Foundation

Catalog Description
The DEL Foundations online course provides an overview of the key components of the nationally acclaimed 92NY DEL Model of teaching dance in a wide variety of learning contexts. This 10-week asynchronous course is based on the highly popular DEL Foundations course that has been taught at 92NY DEL in New York City since DEL's inception in 1995. Developed by DEL Founder, Jody Gottfried Arnhold with Ann Biddle as Founding Faculty, the course has evolved and adapted over its long history. This current iteration has been updated by Ann Biddle and Catherine Gallant and reflects current 21st-century dance education practices.

Updated and modified as an asynchronous learning experience, participants in this course explore 92NY DEL's comprehensive and inclusive model of dance education. Participants will be introduced to the DEL Dance Framework, based on LMA as applied to dance education, as an organizing system for dynamic dance making and scaffolded lesson planning. Participants interact in the online community by engaging in collaborative choreography, dance elements and skills, and self and peer reflection. In addition, participants gain an understanding of broad developmental benchmarks and effective and inspired teaching strategies to support diverse learners in a culturally responsive environment and align with local, state and/or national dance standards. Finally, participants in this course articulate a vision statement that represents their core Teacher's Heart and consider applications of the DEL Model to one's unique environment.

The DEL Foundations curriculum is aligned with the NYC Blueprint for Teaching and Learning in the Arts: Dance Pre-K – 12 and the National Core Arts Standards in Dance (NCCAS).

Economics Department

Overview

The department has two undergraduate programs, a BA in Economics and a BS in Accounting, as well as a BA/MA in Economics. All three programs equip students with analytic tools that can be applied in many different careers in both the private and public sectors.

Economics

Economics students become problem solvers. They learn to analyze a situation, figure out what is important and determine what can be abstracted away. The economics curriculum stresses the development of general problem-solving skills: finding, gathering and interpreting information; predicting the consequences of decisions; evaluating alternative courses of action; and analyzing the management of resources in both the public and private sectors. At the same time, economics students learn about the institutions and rules that shape daily life — the monetary system, the stock and bond markets and the regulatory system that mandates warning labels on cigarette packs and seat belts in automobiles.

What can I do with an Economics Degree?

While an undergraduate major in economics does not define the career a graduate may ultimately lead, it provides students with a point of view and a set of skills that will be useful in almost any path taken after graduation. A major in economics is especially valuable for those who plan careers in finance, management, law, journalism, or public policy. Many professional economists also enter government at the federal, state, or local level, either in research or policy-making positions. Still others are involved in teaching and research in colleges and universities.

Learning Outcomes: Economics BA

1. Understand everyday economics problems.
2. Use economic theory to understand and evaluate policy proposals.
3. Differentiate between positive and normative statements.
4. Understand the role of assumptions in reaching conclusions.
5. Understand the role of empirical evidence in evaluating economic problems.
6. Interpret results.
7. Conduct statistical analysis.
8. Gather or obtain research data.
9. Solve problems with clear solutions.
10. Analyze ambiguous situations.
11. Specialized knowledge in fields.
12. Formulate and support economic arguments in writing and/or orally.
13. Information databases.
14. Primary data sources.

Accounting

Accountants specialize in measuring, reporting and interpreting the financial aspects and transactions of businesses, governments, non-profits and other institutions. Accounting provides the information necessary to determine and evaluate both present and projected economic activities of organizations. Professional accountants develop and apply their skills in auditing, taxation, management policy, information systems, computer operations and many other areas.

What can I do with an Accounting Degree?

Nearly half of all accounting graduates are employed by public accounting firms. Others work for private firms, engage in research and consulting, practice in the government sector or with non-profit entities, or continue their education on the graduate level.

Learning Outcomes: Accounting BS

1. Apply accounting analysis to problems in real world situations. understand current accounting events. and evaluate specific accounting policy proposals (Critical thinking).
2. Use Generally Accepted Accounting Principles to prepare and analyze financial statements and related qualitative information (Quantitative reasoning).
3. Demonstrate an ability to apply authoritative accounting and auditing standards to solve real-world accounting and auditing problems (Problem solving).
4. Demonstrate mastery of the relevant topics and ethical judgment and consideration needed for licensure and success in the Public Accounting profession (Specialized knowledge).
5. Explain accounting issues effectively in written and oral form using correct accounting logic stating relevant accounting principles and rules (Communication).

Honors

Students with a 3.5 GPA in a major offered by the department and an overall 2.8 GPA at the beginning of their upper senior semester may apply for departmental honors at that time. Completion of the following and submission of an honors paper are required. Honors papers are written under faculty supervision and must be approved by a second reader as well. GPA levels must be maintained for the award of departmental honors.

Internships

Students may receive one credit for internships in government agencies, private firms, and not-for-profit institutions. The position must provide opportunities for learning about some area of economics, accounting, or business. The course may be taken no more than twice. Credits may not be applied towards the economics or accounting major. Internships will be graded on a CR/NC basis. Note that it is the responsibility of the student, not the department, to identify internship opportunities.

Program Description

Accounting Major

The Department of Economics offers a major leading to the BS in accounting, requiring a minimum of 30 credits of accounting, 30 credits of other professional studies and an additional 0-13 credits of non-professional studies. Details are outlined below.

Internships

Students may receive one credit for internships in government agencies, private firms, and not-for-profit institutions. The position must provide opportunities for learning about some area of economics, accounting, or business. The course may be taken no more than twice. Credits may not be applied towards the economics or accounting major. Internships will be graded on a P/NC basis. Note that it is the responsibility of the student, not the Department, to identify internship opportunities.

Honors

Students with a 3.5 GPA in the major and an overall 3.0 GPA may apply for departmental honors. Completion of ECO49900 – Honors Project, which counts as an elective course in the major, and submission and approval of an honors paper are required. Honors papers are written under faculty supervision. GPA levels must be maintained for the award of departmental honors.

General Education Requirements - Common Core

Type
Completion Requirement

Fulfill ALL of the following requirements:

Earn at least 6 credits from the following:

- Required Core English Composition

Students who receive an “exemption” for ENGL 12000 or for a course in English Comp 2 are deemed to have fulfilled English Composition 1 or 2, respectively.

AND

Earn at least 3 credits from the following:

- Required Core Mathematical and Quantitative Reasoning

Some courses in this categories carry more than 3 credits (the “STEM variant” courses). Students who elect to take these courses may apply only three credits towards fulfilling the Common Core.

Note: Several courses within this major may fulfill parts of the Hunter Core Requirement (CUNY Common Core Requirement [CCCR], Concurrent Requirements). When selecting courses, it may be to a student’s advantage to choose courses that count toward the Hunter Core Requirement and also advance the student on the path to the major.

In the case of the accounting major, the courses that meet CCC are:

Course	CUNY Common Core Requirement
MATH12500 Precalculus	Math/Quantitative Reasoning
MATH15000 Calculus I	Math/Quantitative Reasoning

AND

Earn at least 3 credits from the following:

- Required Core Life and Physical Sciences

Some courses in this categories carry more than 3 credits (the “STEM variant” courses). Students who elect to take these courses may apply only three credits towards fulfilling the Common Core.

AND

Earn at least 3 credits from the following:

- Flexible Core Scientific World

Some courses in this categories carry more than 3 credits (the “STEM variant” courses). Students who elect to take these courses may apply only three credits towards fulfilling the Common Core.

Note: Several courses within this major may fulfill parts of the Hunter Core Requirement (CUNY Common Core Requirement [CCCR], Concurrent Requirements). When selecting courses, it may be to a student’s advantage to choose courses that count toward the Hunter Core Requirement and also advance the student on the path to the major.

In the case of the accounting major, the courses that meet CCC are:

Course	CUNY Common Core Requirement
ECO20000 Principles of Microeconomics	Scientific World

AND

Earn at least 3 credits from the following:
- Flexible Core Creative Expression

AND

Earn at least 3 credits from the following:
- Flexible Core U.S. Experience in Its Diversity

When selecting courses, it may be to a student's advantage to choose courses that count toward the Hunter Core Requirement and also advance the student on the path to the major.

In the case of the accounting major, the courses that meet CCC are:

Course	CUNY Common Core Requirement
ECO20100 Principles of Macroeconomics	Individual and Society (I&S SS)

AND

Earn at least 3 credits from the following:
- Flexible Core Individual and Society Humanities

Additional Comments:
Students may take no more than two courses from one department or program to fulfill categories Common Core.

Transfer Students

- Transfer students who have earned an AA/AS degree from an accredited institution, including CUNY, and who matriculated in fall 2013 and after will have fulfilled the Common Core.
- For all other CUNY transfer students, any unmet Common Core requirements must be completed while matriculated at Hunter.
- Non-CUNY transfer students without an AA/AS degree should confer with their adviser to determine whether they have met CCC requirements.

2nd Degree Students

- Students who have earned a baccalaureate degree from an accredited institution are exempt from the General Education requirements

General Education Requirements - College Option/Hunter Focus

Type
Completion Requirement

Earn at least 12 credits
The Hunter Focus consists of 12 credits total. The composition of these credits will vary depending on the student's matriculation status and language proficiency. All students are required to complete the Foreign Language requirement; after that is met, students begin Concentrated Study.

Exceptions:

- Students in the School of Nursing may fulfill their entire 12 credits of Hunter Focus by taking three "STEM variant" science courses in addition to the STEM courses used to fulfill the Common Core.
- Students with a joint major in Education may fulfill their entire 12 credits with courses in Education.

Hunter Focus: Foreign Language

Students must attain fourth-semester proficiency in a foreign language. For students with no prior language courses, this proficiency typically consists of completing four courses or a total of 12 credits. Students who have prior language courses, including those from high school, should consult an adviser. Students may apply only one course at each level (Elementary level 1, Elementary level 2, Intermediate level 3, and Intermediate level 4) toward the Hunter Focus. Intensive courses can be used to satisfy the two-course sequence at the Elementary and at the Intermediate levels.

Hunter Focus: Concentrated Study

Once students have completed the Foreign Language requirement, any credits remaining from the 12 required for the Hunter Focus will be used on Concentrated Study. Concentrated Study refers to courses that fulfill requirements for a declared minor, a second major or a certificate. The number of credits required for Concentrated Study ranges from 0-12 and is determined by the number of credits in a foreign language a student must take.

CREDITS OF FOREIGN LANGUAGE NEEDED	CREDITS OF CONCENTRATED STUDY NEEDED
3	9
6	6
9	3*

For students who matriculated prior to fall 2019, these three credits are waived.*

For students who matriculated in fall 2019 or after, and who do not also complete a second major, minor, or certificate program, these three credits shall be from a course, at the 200-level or above, on a topic related to the language used for the Foreign Language requirement, in the target language or in English translation.*

Transfer Students

All transfer students must complete the Hunter Focus. For students who first matriculated in an associate program, the number of credits required in the Hunter Focus varies with the number of credits transferred.

CREDITS/DEGREES TRANSFERRED	CREDITS/REQUIRED
Fewer than 30	12
30 or more, without an AA/AS degree	9
AA/AS degree	6

Students who first matriculate in a baccalaureate program must complete 12 credits of Hunter Focus. Any "College Option" credits completed at another CUNY senior college will be applied to the Hunter Focus.

Hunter Focus: Foreign Language

Transfer students must reach or work toward fourth-semester proficiency in a foreign language. The number of credits needed to complete the Foreign Language requirement is determined by the student's transfer status, as defined above, and language proficiency at the time of matriculation. Students who have prior language courses, including those from high school, should consult an adviser.

Hunter Focus: Concentrated Study

Once transfer students have completed the Foreign Language requirement, any credits remaining from the Hunter Focus will be used on Concentrated Study as described above.

2nd Degree Students

- Students who have earned a baccalaureate degree from an accredited institution are exempt from the General Education requirements

Degree Requirements - Pluralism and Diversity

Type
Completion Requirement

Fulfill ALL of the following requirements:

Earn at least 3 credits from the following:
- Pluralism and Diversity Requirement – Group A

A course focusing on scholarship about major practical or theoretical issues (e.g., artistic, economic, geographic, literary, political, scientific or social) that emerge from, are reflected in or are principally derived from the historical conditions, perspectives and/or intellectual traditions of non-European societies, particularly those of Africa, Asia, Latin America or those indigenous to the Americas.

AND

Earn at least 3 credits from the following:
- Pluralism and Diversity Requirement – Group B

A course focusing on scholarship about major practical or theoretical issues (e.g., artistic, economic, geographic, literary, political, scientific or social) that emerge from, are reflected in or are principally derived from the historical conditions, perspectives, immigrant experiences and/or intellectual traditions of one or more of the following groups in the United States of America: African Americans, Asian Americans, Latino Americans and Native Americans.

AND

Earn at least 3 credits from the following:
- Pluralism and Diversity Requirement – Group C

A course focusing on scholarship about major practical or theoretical issues (e.g., artistic, economic, geographic, literary, political, scientific or social) that emerge from, are reflected in or are principally derived from the historical conditions, perspectives and/or intellectual traditions of women and/or issues of gender or sexual orientation.

AND

Earn at least 3 credits from the following:
- Pluralism and Diversity Requirement – Group D

A course focusing on scholarship about major practical or theoretical issues (e.g., artistic, economic, geographic, literary, political, scientific or social) that emerge from, are reflected in or are principally derived from the historical conditions, perspectives and/or intellectual traditions of Europe, including the ways in which pluralism and diversity have been addressed.

Additional Comments:
Students must complete four courses designated for the Pluralism and Diversity Requirement, one from each of four categories. The four categories of Pluralism and Diversity focus on major practical or theoretical issues that emerge from, are reflected in, or are principally derived from the historical conditions, perspectives, and/or intellectual traditions of the following:

A. Non-European societies, particularly those of Africa, Asia, Latin America, or those indigenous to the Americas;

B. One or more of the following groups in the US: African Americans, Asian Americans, Latino Americans, and Native Americans;

C. Women and/or issues of gender or sexual orientation;

D. Europe, including ways in which pluralism and diversity have been addressed.

Any one course with a Pluralism and Diversity designation can satisfy only one Pluralism and Diversity category but may also fulfill any other requirement.

Transfer Students

Transfer students must take at least two courses designated for different categories of the Pluralism and Diversity requirement. The number of courses required in Pluralism and Diversity is determined by the number of credits transferred.

CREDITS TRANSFERRED	COURSES REQUIRED
Fewer than 31	4
31 or more	2

Any one course with a Pluralism and Diversity designation can only satisfy one Pluralism and Diversity category but may also fulfill any other requirement.

2nd Degree Students

- Students who have earned a baccalaureate degree from an accredited institution are exempt from the General Education requirements

Degree Requirements - Writing Intensive

Type
Completion Requirement

Complete at least 1 course in the following course sets:
- Writing Intensive

Transfer Students

Transfer students must take at least one Writing Intensive course, designated with a "W" in the catalog, at Hunter College. The number of Writing Intensive courses required is determined by the number of credits transferred.

CREDITS TRANSFERRED	"W" COURSES REQUIRED
Fewer than 30	3
31-59	2
60 or more	1

Note: Specific sections of courses containing significant writing are listed with a W designation in the Schedule of Classes. Please note that not all sections of a course are necessarily offered with significant writing. To satisfy the Writing Requirement a section designated as W in the Schedule of Classes must be taken.

2nd Degree Students

- Students who have earned a baccalaureate degree from an accredited institution are exempt from the General Education requirements

Major Requirements - Overall

Type
Completion Requirement

60 - 73 credits

Accounting majors may not use P/NC grades for any of the 35 accounting credits in the accounting major

Earn a minimum GPA of 2.5
An overall Grade Point Average of at least 2.5 must be maintained in these 35 Accounting credits. Students who receive a grade of "D" or lower in any of the eleven required Accounting courses in the Professional Studies Requirement will be allowed to repeat the course only once. In total, students may repeat no more than three Accounting courses for which they received a grade of "D" or lower. Students who exceed this allowed number of course repeats will be dismissed from the BS program in Accounting. The Academic Adviser for the BS program in Accounting may, under extraordinary circumstances, make exceptions to this rule.

Major Requirements - Non-professional Studies

Type
Completion Requirement

Math Sequence

Earn at least 3 credits from the following:
- MATH 15000 - Calculus I
  AND MATH 15200 - Calculus for the Life and Social Science

Students are placed into one of the following math courses. Placement determines the remaining math classes needed in the sequence shown below before students are eligible to take MATH 15000 or MATH 15200.

Earn at least 9 credits from the following:
- MATH 10100 - Algebra for College Students
  OR MATH 101EN - Algebra College Stud-Enhanced
- MATH 10500 - Math for Elementary Education 2
- MATH 12400 - College Algebra and Trigonometry
  OR MATH 12500 - Precalculus
  OR MATH 12550 - Precalculus with Workshop
- MATH 14000 - Mathematical Reasoning Workshop

Notes: Students may place out of any of the classes listed above and MATH 15000 (STEM)/MATH 15200 (STEM) without replacing the credits. MATH 15000 (STEM) is preferred for students who will take additional MATH courses.

Major Requirements - Professional Studies

Type
Completion Requirement

Accounting

Earn at least 30 credits from the following:
- ACC 10100 - Accounting: The Language of Business
- ACC 27100 - Accounting 1
- ACC 27200 - Accounting II
- ACCP 37100 - Intermediate Accounting I
- ACCP 37200 - Intermediate Accounting 2
- ACCP 37300 - Federal Income Taxation
- ACCP 37400 - Managerial Accounting (Cost Accounting)
- ACCP 47000 - Advanced Accounting
- ACCP 47500 - Auditing

Students who receive a grade of "D" or lower in any of the nine required Accounting courses in the Professional Studies Requirement will be allowed to repeat the course only once. In total, students may repeat no more than three Accounting courses for which they received a grade of "D" or lower. Students who exceed this allowed number of course repeats will be dismissed from the B.S. program in Accounting. The Academic Advisor for the B.S. program in Accounting may, under extraordinary circumstances, make exceptions to this rule.

Other Professional Studies

Earn at least 30 credits from the following:
- ACC 28000 - Business Law I
- ECO 10000 - Introduction to Economics
- ECO 20000 - Principles of Microeconomics
- ECO 20100 - Principles of Macroeconomics
- ECO 36500 - Corporate Finance
- ACCP 36700 - Analysis of Financial Statements
- ACCP 47600 - Computer Accounting Systems
- ECO 22100 - Economic Statistics
  OR STAT 21300 - Introduction to Applied Statistics

Grade Options
All seventeen required courses in the Professional Studies area (Accounting and Other Professional Studies) must be passed with a letter grade of C or better. P/NC option is not allowed.

Elective Courses (6 credits)
Choose any two (6 cr) 300-, 400-, 600-, or 700-level ACC/ACCP courses that are not part of the required courses above. ECO 49900 is also allowed. Registration in graduate courses is subject to approval by the Director of MS program.

Additional Comments:

- An overall Grade Point Average of at least 2.5 must be maintained over the nineteen courses in the Professional Studies requirement (Accounting, Other Professional Studies, required and elective courses) in the Accounting major.
- ECO courses used toward the Accounting BS may also count toward the Economics BA.
- There is no minimum required Grade Point Average for the three to thirteen Non-professional Studies credits.

Program Description

The Certificate in Business Studies, a 15-credit program housed in the Economics department,consists of courses drawn from several departments. While the best foundation for any career is a liberal arts education, many students want to supplement their liberal arts education with business-specific skills and a credential signaling those skills to potential employers. We rely on businesses in New York City for work opportunities for students, and on the Cooperman Pre-Business Center for coordination of internships and workshops in business skills.

Eligibility

1. Full-time students currently enrolled at Hunter College. Graduate students and individuals with advanced degrees are not eligible to apply.
2. To be eligible to apply, students must have an overall GPA of 2.5 or higher, and have completed course ECO 10000 with a final grade of C or higher. To be eligible to earn the certificate, students must maintain a GPA of 2.5 or higher

Application

1. An electronic copy of their resumé, highlighting work experience as well as relevant extra-curricular activities and interests
2. One essay of 300-500 words, answering the following questions:
• What are your professional aspirations upon graduating Hunter?
• How will participating in the Business Studies Certificate help you achieve these goals?

If additional information is required, students may be asked to interview with the Director of the Business Certificate.

The Admissions Committee will select applicants subject to available resources.

Transfer Students

- Transfer students who have earned an AA/AS degree from an accredited institution, including CUNY, and who matriculated in fall 2013 and after will have fulfilled the Common Core.
- For all other CUNY transfer students, any unmet Common Core requirements must be completed while matriculated at Hunter.

- Non-CUNY transfer students without an AA/AS degree should confer with their adviser to determine whether they have met CCC requirements.

2nd Degree Students

- Students who have earned a baccalaureate degree from an accredited institution are exempt from the General Education requirements

Degree Requirements - College Option/Hunter Focus

Type
Completion Requirement

Earn at least 12 credits
The Hunter Focus consists of 12 credits total. The composition of these credits will vary depending on the student's matriculation status and language proficiency. All students are required to complete the Foreign Language requirement; after that is met, students begin Concentrated Study.

Exceptions:

- Students in the School of Nursing may fulfill their entire 12 credits of Hunter Focus by taking three "STEM variant" science courses in addition to the STEM courses used to fulfill the Common Core.
- Students with a joint major in Education may fulfill their entire 12 credits with courses in Education.

Hunter Focus: Foreign Language

Students must attain fourth-semester proficiency in a foreign language. For students with no prior language courses, this proficiency typically consists of completing four courses or a total of 12 credits. Students who have prior language courses, including those from high school, should consult an adviser. Students may apply only one course at each level (Elementary level 1, Elementary level 2, Intermediate level 3, and Intermediate level 4) toward the Hunter Focus. Intensive courses can be used to satisfy the two-course sequence at the Elementary and at the Intermediate levels.

Hunter Focus: Concentrated Study

Once students have completed the Foreign Language requirement, any credits remaining from the 12 required for the Hunter Focus will be used on Concentrated Study. Concentrated Study refers to courses that fulfill requirements for a declared minor, a second major or a certificate. The number of credits required for Concentrated Study ranges from 0-12 and is determined by the number of credits in a foreign language a student must take.

For students who matriculated prior to fall 2019, these three credits are waived.*

For students who matriculated in fall 2019 or after, and who do not also complete a second major, minor, or certificate program, these three credits shall be from a course, at the 200-level or above, on a topic related to the language used for the Foreign Language requirement, in the target language or in English translation.*

Transfer Students

All transfer students must complete the Hunter Focus. For students who first matriculated in an associate program, the number of credits required in the Hunter Focus varies with the number of credits transferred.

CREDITS/DEGREES TRANSFERRED	CREDITS/REQUIRED
Fewer than 30	12
30 or more, without an AA/AS degree	9
AA/AS degree	6

Students who first matriculate in a baccalaureate program must complete 12 credits of Hunter Focus. Any "College Option" credits completed at another CUNY senior college will be applied to the Hunter Focus.

Hunter Focus: Foreign Language

Transfer students must reach or work toward fourth-semester proficiency in a foreign language. The number of credits needed to complete the Foreign Language requirement is determined by the student's transfer status, as defined above, and language proficiency at the time of matriculation. Students who have prior language courses, including those from high school, should consult an adviser.

Hunter Focus: Concentrated Study

Once transfer students have completed the Foreign Language requirement, any credits remaining from the Hunter Focus will be used on Concentrated Study as described above.

2nd Degree Students

- Students who have earned a baccalaureate degree from an accredited institution are exempt from the General Education requirements

Degree Requirements - Pluralism and Diversity

Type
Completion Requirement

Fulfill ALL of the following requirements:

Earn at least 3 credits from the following:
- Pluralism and Diversity Requirement – Group A

A course focusing on scholarship about major practical or theoretical issues (e.g., artistic, economic, geographic, literary, political, scientific or social) that emerge from, are reflected in or are principally derived from the historical conditions, perspectives and/or intellectual traditions of non-European societies, particularly those of Africa, Asia, Latin America or those indigenous to the Americas.

AND

Earn at least 3 credits from the following:
- Pluralism and Diversity Requirement – Group B

A course focusing on scholarship about major practical or theoretical issues (e.g., artistic, economic, geographic, literary, political, scientific or social) that emerge from, are reflected in or are principally derived from the historical conditions, perspectives, immigrant experiences and/or intellectual traditions of one or more of the following groups in the United States of America: African Americans, Asian Americans, Latino Americans and Native Americans.

AND

Earn at least 3 credits from the following:

- Pluralism and Diversity Requirement – Group C

A course focusing on scholarship about major practical or theoretical issues (e.g., artistic, economic, geographic, literary, political, scientific or social) that emerge from, are reflected in or are principally derived from the historical conditions, perspectives and/or intellectual traditions of women and/or issues of gender or sexual orientation.

AND

Earn at least 3 credits from the following:

- Pluralism and Diversity Requirement – Group D

A course focusing on scholarship about major practical or theoretical issues (e.g., artistic, economic, geographic, literary, political, scientific or social) that emerge from, are reflected in or are principally derived from the historical conditions, perspectives and/or intellectual traditions of Europe, including the ways in which pluralism and diversity have been addressed.

Additional Comments:
Students must complete four courses designated for the Pluralism and Diversity Requirement, one from each of four categories. The four categories of Pluralism and Diversity focus on major practical or theoretical issues that emerge from, are reflected in, or are principally derived from the historical conditions, perspectives, and/or intellectual traditions of the following:

A. Non-European societies, particularly those of Africa, Asia, Latin America, or those indigenous to the Americas;

B. One or more of the following groups in the US: African Americans, Asian Americans, Latino Americans, and Native Americans;

C. Women and/or issues of gender or sexual orientation;

D. Europe, including ways in which pluralism and diversity have been addressed.

Any one course with a Pluralism and Diversity designation can satisfy only one Pluralism and Diversity category but may also fulfill any other requirement.

Transfer Students

Transfer students must take at least two courses designated for different categories of the Pluralism and Diversity requirement. The number of courses required in Pluralism and Diversity is determined by the number of credits transferred.

Internships

Students may receive one credit for internships in government agencies, private firms, and not-for-profit institutions. The position must provide opportunities for learning about some area of economics, accounting, or business. The course may be taken no more than twice. Credits may not be applied towards the economics or accounting major. Internships will be graded on a P/NC basis. Note that it is the responsibility of the student, not the Department, to identify internship opportunities.

Honors

Students with a 3.5 GPA in the major and 3.0 overall may apply for departmental honors. Completion of ECO 49900 - Honors Project, which counts as an elective course in the major, and submission and approval of an honors paper are required. Honors papers are written under faculty supervision. GPA levels must be maintained for the award of departmental honors.

Economics majors may find both the minor and the Certificate Program in Public Policy Certificate of particular interest.

Transfer Students

- Transfer students who have earned an AA/AS degree from an accredited institution, including CUNY, and who matriculated in fall 2013 and after will have fulfilled the Common Core.
- For all other CUNY transfer students, any unmet Common Core requirements must be completed while matriculated at Hunter.
- Non-CUNY transfer students without an AA/AS degree should confer with their adviser to determine whether they have met CCC requirements.

2nd Degree Students

- Students who have earned a baccalaureate degree from an accredited institution are exempt from the General Education requirements

Degree Requirements - College Option/Hunter Focus

Type
Completion Requirement

Earn at least 12 credits
The Hunter Focus consists of 12 credits total. The composition of these credits will vary depending on the student's matriculation status and language proficiency. All students are required to complete the Foreign Language requirement; after that is met, students begin Concentrated Study.

Exceptions:

- Students in the School of Nursing may fulfill their entire 12 credits of Hunter Focus by taking three "STEM variant" science courses in addition to the STEM courses used to fulfill the Common Core.
- Students with a joint major in Education may fulfill their entire 12 credits with courses in Education.

Hunter Focus: Foreign Language

Students must attain fourth-semester proficiency in a foreign language. For students with no prior language courses, this proficiency typically consists of completing four courses or a total of 12 credits. Students who have prior language courses, including those from high school, should consult an adviser. Students may apply only one course at each level (Elementary level 1, Elementary level 2, Intermediate level 3, and Intermediate level 4) toward the Hunter Focus. Intensive courses can be used to satisfy the two-course sequence at the Elementary and at the Intermediate levels.

Hunter Focus: Concentrated Study

Once students have completed the Foreign Language requirement, any credits remaining from the 12 required for the Hunter Focus will be used on Concentrated Study. Concentrated Study refers to courses that fulfill requirements for a declared minor, a second major or a certificate. The number of credits required for Concentrated Study ranges from 0-12 and is determined by the number of credits in a foreign language a student must take.

CREDITS OF FOREIGN LANGUAGE NEEDED	CREDITS OF CONCENTRATED STUDY NEEDED
0	12
3	9
6	6
9	3*

For students who matriculated prior to fall 2019, these three credits are waived.*

For students who matriculated in fall 2019 or after, and who do not also complete a second major, minor, or certificate program, these three credits shall be from a course, at the 200-level or above, on a topic related to the language used for the Foreign Language requirement, in the target language or in English translation.*

Transfer Students

All transfer students must complete the Hunter Focus. For students who first matriculated in an associate program, the number of credits required in the Hunter Focus varies with the number of credits transferred.

CREDITS/DEGREES TRANSFERRED	CREDITS/REQUIRED
Fewer than 30	12
30 or more, without an AA/AS degree	9
AA/AS degree	6

Students who first matriculate in a baccalaureate program must complete 12 credits of Hunter Focus. Any "College Option" credits completed at another CUNY senior college will be applied to the Hunter Focus.

Hunter Focus: Foreign Language

Transfer students must reach or work toward fourth-semester proficiency in a foreign language. The number of credits needed to complete the Foreign Language requirement is determined by the student's transfer status, as defined above, and language proficiency at the time of matriculation. Students who have prior language courses, including those from high school, should consult an adviser.

Hunter Focus: Concentrated Study

Once transfer students have completed the Foreign Language requirement, any credits remaining from the Hunter Focus will be used on Concentrated Study as described above.

2nd Degree Students

- Students who have earned a baccalaureate degree from an accredited institution are exempt from the General Education requirements

Degree Requirements - Pluralism and Diversity

Type
Completion Requirement

Fulfill ALL of the following requirements:

Earn at least 3 credits from the following:

- Pluralism and Diversity Requirement – Group A

A course focusing on scholarship about major practical or theoretical issues (e.g., artistic, economic, geographic, literary, political, scientific or social) that emerge from, are reflected in or are principally derived from the historical conditions, perspectives and/or intellectual traditions of non-European societies, particularly those of Africa, Asia, Latin America or those indigenous to the Americas.

AND

Earn at least 3 credits from the following:

- Pluralism and Diversity Requirement – Group B

A course focusing on scholarship about major practical or theoretical issues (e.g., artistic, economic, geographic, literary, political, scientific or social) that emerge from, are reflected in or are principally derived from the historical conditions, perspectives, immigrant experiences and/or intellectual traditions of one or more of the following groups in the United States of America: African Americans, Asian Americans, Latino Americans and Native Americans.

AND

Earn at least 3 credits from the following:

- Pluralism and Diversity Requirement – Group C

A course focusing on scholarship about major practical or theoretical issues (e.g., artistic, economic, geographic, literary, political, scientific or social) that emerge from, are reflected in or are principally derived from the historical conditions, perspectives and/or intellectual traditions of women and/or issues of gender or sexual orientation.

AND

Earn at least 3 credits from the following:

- Pluralism and Diversity Requirement – Group D

A course focusing on scholarship about major practical or theoretical issues (e.g., artistic, economic, geographic, literary, political, scientific or social) that emerge from, are reflected in or are principally derived from the historical conditions, perspectives and/or intellectual traditions of Europe, including the ways in which pluralism and diversity have been addressed.

Additional Comments:
Students must complete four courses designated for the Pluralism and Diversity Requirement, one from each of four categories. The four categories of Pluralism and Diversity focus on major practical or theoretical issues that emerge from, are reflected in, or are principally derived from the historical conditions, perspectives, and/or intellectual traditions of the following:

A. Non-European societies, particularly those of Africa, Asia, Latin America, or those indigenous to the Americas;

B. One or more of the following groups in the US: African Americans, Asian Americans, Latino Americans, and Native Americans;

C. Women and/or issues of gender or sexual orientation;

D. Europe, including ways in which pluralism and diversity have been addressed.

Any one course with a Pluralism and Diversity designation can satisfy only one Pluralism and Diversity category but may also fulfill any other requirement.

Transfer Students

Transfer students must take at least two courses designated for different categories of the Pluralism and Diversity requirement. The number of courses required in Pluralism and Diversity is determined by the number of credits transferred.

CREDITS TRANSFERRED	COURSES REQUIRED

ECO 40000 - Senior Seminar: The big (economics) picture and getting ready for life after college (3 cr)

General

Course Title
Senior Seminar: The big (economics) picture and getting ready for life after college

Catalog Description
ECO 40000 is a seminar so class meetings will not be lecture-centered. Instead, each student will be expected to actively participate in class discussion, provide thoughtful comments on the readings, give polished oral presentations on their research, and offer detailed reflections on the work of their colleagues in the class. Upon completing this course, students will be able to synthesize and critically question views from some scholarly books and research articles in economics. Second, students will learn to critically examine and present ideas on an area of economics of their choice by gathering, organizing and analyze data and writing, editing and giving oral presentations. Third, students will prepare for life after Hunter College by working on their resumes, interview skills, and public speaking.

Educational Foundations and Counseling Programs Department

Overview

The Department of Educational Foundations & Counseling Programs prepares students to enter the teaching and counseling professions, eventually to obtain the appropriate certification(s), which will help them establish, improve and maintain themselves within these professions.

Departmental courses are the basis of training in education and human services. The Department of Educational Foundations includes the disciplines of psychology, sociology, anthropology, history and philosophy. Research in these areas, when applied to education and counseling, provides the foundation for understanding individuals in the learning and counseling process and the social psychological context in which personal development and learning occur. In addition, the study of the history and the philosophic foundations of American education and counseling is essential for enabling future teachers and counselors to meet the ever-changing intellectual and social needs of a diverse body of individuals in a pluralistic, democratic society.

Departmental course offerings are offered in three distinct areas: psychological foundations; social foundations and counseling. All courses are anchored in theory and research-based knowledge from which we emphasize applications to the urban environment, the applied use of theory to influence policy and practice, and solutions to concrete and practical problems that school and counseling professionals experience in daily practice.

The department’s preparation of teachers and counselors goes beyond the acquisition of specific skills and methods. The focus of the department is on the professional identity and development of students so that they understand and seek to influence the social, political and economic context in which they function.

QSTB 41380 - Educational Psychology: Learning and Motivation (3 cr)

General

Course Title
Educational Psychology: Learning and Motivation

Catalog Description
This course provides teacher candidates with foundational psychological knowledge about students' learning and motivation, and the importance of learning context. Foremost, the course focuses on learners and the science of learning. The theories and practices presented in this course will tie to student learning as a system of interactions among cognitive, affective, and behavioral processes; and will cover topics on the internal mechanisms and processes of learning, the science of learning, the impact of technology on student learning and motivation, and how external and cultural contexts interact with classroom learning. Teacher candidates will also learn about the research and practice of classroom management and learners' sense of belonging. Because learning involves a complex system of interactions for students—based on their own brain structures and processes, prior learning experiences, cognitions, affects, and behaviors, and interactions with peers and adults in their environment— teacher candidates will examine why and how student learning takes place, so that they can make appropriate instructional decisions. The course is designed to situate discussion around students and their interactions within classroom settings and beyond the classroom that affect teacher-student and teacher-family interactions. To complement the science of learning and motivation covered in this course, candidates will conduct either "virtual" or "simulated" fieldwork. Such practical experiences will reinforce and illustrate the application of educational theories and research in actual classrooms.

English Department

Overview

The Department of English offers students a variety of courses in the study of literature, literary theory, composition, rhetoric, linguistics and creative writing. The department is interdisciplinary in its offerings, with a diverse faculty whose areas of research and approaches to teaching offer Hunter students a wide spectrum of historical, post-modern, theoretical, textual, and socio-cultural approaches to literary study, rhetoric and composition, linguistics and language, and creative writing. The department encourages disciplined, original thinking and writing while its small classes promote learning through stimulating discussions.

Introductory and intermediate courses present a wide range of literary forms, periods and genres. Students who major in English choose one of five concentrations: Literatures and Criticism; Creative Writing; English: Foundations for Adolescent Education (a concentration designed for prospective high school teachers), English Language Arts and Linguistics and Rhetoric. Qualified students may enroll in honors seminars and tutorials. The English Department participates in Hunter's interdisciplinary programs in Asian American Studies, Comparative Literature, Women's and Gender Studies, and Religion. The English major provides a foundation for careers in writing, teaching, journalism, publishing, law, business, or any other career that depends on the ability to read analytically and write effectively.

What can I do with my degree in English?

The ability to write well remains a rare but prized skill in almost every field, and English majors go on to careers in a variety of professions. The analytical , writing, and speaking skills honed in the major can lead graduates to careers in fields such as marketing, technology, publishing, teaching, the arts, law, venture capital, medicine, and policy making.

Learning Outcomes: English BA

1. Use close reading skills and critical thinking to analyze and construct arguments about primary texts.
2. Acquire broad and specialized knowledge about historical contexts of literature the relationship between literature and history and literary genres.
3. Write scholarly research papers that use appropriate primary and secondary sources.
4. Apply literary and.or rhetorical and-or linguistic theory to primary texts.
5. For students in creative writing incorporate peer and instructor feedback through the workshop process.

Transfer Students

- Transfer students who have earned an AA/AS degree from an accredited institution, including CUNY, and who matriculated in fall 2013 and after will have fulfilled the Common Core.
- For all other CUNY transfer students, any unmet Common Core requirements must be completed while matriculated at Hunter.
- Non-CUNY transfer students without an AA/AS degree should confer with their adviser to determine whether they have met CCC requirements.

2nd Degree Students

- Students who have earned a baccalaureate degree from an accredited institution are exempt from the General Education requirements

Degree Requirements - College Option/Hunter Focus

Type
Completion Requirement

Earn at least 12 credits
The Hunter Focus consists of 12 credits total. The composition of these credits will vary depending on the student's matriculation status and language proficiency. All students are required to complete the Foreign Language requirement; after that is met, students begin Concentrated Study.

Exceptions:

- Students in the School of Nursing may fulfill their entire 12 credits of Hunter Focus by taking three "STEM variant" science courses in addition to the STEM courses used to fulfill the Common Core.
- Students with a joint major in Education may fulfill their entire 12 credits with courses in Education.

Hunter Focus: Foreign Language

Students must attain fourth-semester proficiency in a foreign language. For students with no prior language courses, this proficiency typically consists of completing four courses or a total of 12 credits. Students who have prior language courses, including those from high school, should consult an adviser. Students may apply only one course at each level (Elementary level 1, Elementary level 2, Intermediate level 3, and Intermediate level 4) toward the Hunter Focus. Intensive courses can be used to satisfy the two-course sequence at the Elementary and at the Intermediate levels.

Hunter Focus: Concentrated Study

Once students have completed the Foreign Language requirement, any credits remaining from the 12 required for the Hunter Focus will be used on Concentrated Study. Concentrated Study refers to courses that fulfill requirements for a declared minor, a second major or a certificate. The number of credits required for Concentrated Study ranges from 0-12 and is determined by the number of credits in a foreign language a student must take.

CREDITS OF FOREIGN LANGUAGE NEEDED	CREDITS OF CONCENTRATED STUDY NEEDED
0	12
3	9
6	6
9	3*

For students who matriculated prior to fall 2019, these three credits are waived.*

For students who matriculated in fall 2019 or after, and who do not also complete a second major, minor, or certificate program, these three credits shall be from a course, at the 200-level or above, on a topic related to the language used for the Foreign Language requirement, in the target language or in English translation.*

Transfer Students

All transfer students must complete the Hunter Focus. For students who first matriculated in an associate program, the number of credits required in the Hunter Focus varies with the number of credits transferred.

CREDITS/DEGREES TRANSFERRED	CREDITS/REQUIRED
Fewer than 30	12
30 or more, without an AA/AS degree	9
AA/AS degree	6

Students who first matriculate in a baccalaureate program must complete 12 credits of Hunter Focus. Any "College Option" credits completed at another CUNY senior college will be applied to the Hunter Focus.

Hunter Focus: Foreign Language

Transfer students must reach or work toward fourth-semester proficiency in a foreign language. The number of credits needed to complete the Foreign Language requirement is determined by the student's transfer status, as defined above, and language proficiency at the time of matriculation. Students who have prior language courses, including those from high school, should consult an adviser.

Hunter Focus: Concentrated Study

Once transfer students have completed the Foreign Language requirement, any credits remaining from the Hunter Focus will be used on Concentrated Study as described above.

2nd Degree Students

- Students who have earned a baccalaureate degree from an accredited institution are exempt from the General Education requirements

Degree Requirements - Pluralism and Diversity

Type
Completion Requirement

Fulfill ALL of the following requirements:

Earn at least 3 credits from the following:
- Pluralism and Diversity Requirement – Group A

A course focusing on scholarship about major practical or theoretical issues (e.g., artistic, economic, geographic, literary, political, scientific or social) that emerge from, are reflected in or are principally derived from the historical conditions, perspectives and/or intellectual traditions of non-European societies, particularly those of Africa, Asia, Latin America or those indigenous to the Americas.

AND

Earn at least 3 credits from the following:
- Pluralism and Diversity Requirement – Group B

A course focusing on scholarship about major practical or theoretical issues (e.g., artistic, economic, geographic, literary, political, scientific or social) that emerge from, are reflected in or are principally derived from the historical conditions, perspectives, immigrant experiences and/or intellectual traditions of one or more of the following groups in the United States of America: African Americans, Asian Americans, Latino Americans and Native Americans.

AND

Earn at least 3 credits from the following:

- Pluralism and Diversity Requirement – Group C

A course focusing on scholarship about major practical or theoretical issues (e.g., artistic, economic, geographic, literary, political, scientific or social) that emerge from, are reflected in or are principally derived from the historical conditions, perspectives and/or intellectual traditions of women and/or issues of gender or sexual orientation.

AND

Earn at least 3 credits from the following:

- Pluralism and Diversity Requirement – Group D

A course focusing on scholarship about major practical or theoretical issues (e.g., artistic, economic, geographic, literary, political, scientific or social) that emerge from, are reflected in or are principally derived from the historical conditions, perspectives and/or intellectual traditions of Europe, including the ways in which pluralism and diversity have been addressed.

Additional Comments:
Students must complete four courses designated for the Pluralism and Diversity Requirement, one from each of four categories. The four categories of Pluralism and Diversity focus on major practical or theoretical issues that emerge from, are reflected in, or are principally derived from the historical conditions, perspectives, and/or intellectual traditions of the following:

A. Non-European societies, particularly those of Africa, Asia, Latin America, or those indigenous to the Americas;

B. One or more of the following groups in the US: African Americans, Asian Americans, Latino Americans, and Native Americans;

C. Women and/or issues of gender or sexual orientation;

D. Europe, including ways in which pluralism and diversity have been addressed.

Any one course with a Pluralism and Diversity designation can satisfy only one Pluralism and Diversity category but may also fulfill any other requirement.

Transfer Students

Transfer students must take at least two courses designated for different categories of the Pluralism and Diversity requirement. The number of courses required in Pluralism and Diversity is determined by the number of credits transferred.

CREDITS TRANSFERRED	COURSES REQUIRED
Fewer than 31	4
31 or more	2

D. Electives (15 credits)

Students in this major are required to take fifteen credits of elective courses. One elective course must be a 400-level advanced seminar, which can only be taken after achieving 24 credits in the major (see below). The remaining courses must be at the 300-level or above (with the exception of ENGL 28000 and ENGL 28500).

All English majors also have the option to take one of their elective courses in another department. In order to do this, students must meet all of that department's prerequisites for the course. Students with double majors may apply the course to one of those majors, but not both. For example, someone majoring in English and History who takes HIST 34251 Britain Since 1689 may count that course toward either the English or History major, not both. Students may choose from the courses and departments listed below.

Note: To take a 300-level course in one of the following departments and programs that is not on the list, or in another department, students must have prior written permission from an English advisor and must meet all the prerequisites for the course.

Major Requirements - English: Foundations for Adolescent Education Concentration

Type
Completion Requirement

The Concentration in English: Foundations for Adolescent Education (42 cr.) is designed to give students the foundation in literary studies, writing, and linguistics that is required for teaching English in grades 7-12. This concentration alone does not meet the teaching certification requirements for New York State and New York City public schools. Students interested in meeting these certification requirements will take this course sequence as part of the BA program in Adolescent English, Grades 7-12 jointly offered by the School of Arts & Sciences and the School of Education. Students interested in the BA program in Adolescent English, Grades 7-12 should declare this concentration of the major in English before declaring the joint major with the School of Education. Students who do not wish to pursue certification do not need to contact the School of Education and should simply follow the course of study set out in this English concentration.

ENGL 25032 - Shirtwaist Factory (3 cr)

General

Course Title
Shirtwaist Factory

Catalog Description
This course examines the Triangle Factory Fire of March 25, 1911 from multiple interdisciplinary perspectives, in the context of early twenty-century social history, and through the theoretical lens of intersectionality (race, class and gender). Students will investigate how the memory and significance of the fire have reverberated nationally and internationally in politics and culture for over a century. In addition to studying the Cornell University labor archives, and the Remember the Triangle Factory Fire Coalition archives, students will study representation of the fire in literary forms such as theater, performance pieces, poetry, interviews, family memoirs, and lyrics; as well as in documentaries, art exhibits, and other cultural products, including the annual commemoration of the fire in New York City.

ENGL 28500 - Introduction to Creative Writing (3 cr)

General

Course Title
Introduction to Creative Writing

Catalog Description
This multi-genre workshop is an introduction to creative writing and will focus on poetry, fiction, and creative non-fiction. Course work will include both reading and writing in these three genres, writing exercises, and, as students will present copies of their work to the class for discussion, an introduction to workshop methods of critiquing student poems. Weekly reading and writing assignments will introduce students to literary terms, poetic devices and narrative strategies. The emphasis will be on revision and writing as a process. Work includes Reading Response Journal and portfolio of work done in these three genres.

ENGL 32258 - Dissident Desires and Pleasures in Bohemian New York (3 cr)

General

Course Title
Dissident Desires and Pleasures in Bohemian New York

Catalog Description
The course will explore the bending, folding, and twisting incoherencies of desire, from the psychoanalytic mappings of Freud (Three Essays on the Theory of Sexuality) and Klein (Love, Hate, and Reparation) to the reappraisals of Deleuze and Guattari (Anti-Oedipus), and Foucault. Moving away from the normal and the universal toward what Lauren Berlant calls “more expansive and generous sociabilities and worlds,” we will engage a set of Bohemian New York writers, potentially including Poe, Winthrop (Cecil Dreeme), Whitman, Barnes, Henri-Ford and Tyler, Ginsberg, and Delany.

ENGL 35560 - Shakespeare's New Worlds (3 cr)

General

Course Title
Shakespeare's New Worlds

Catalog Description
Shakespeare's career (c. 1590-1613) overlapped with what has been characterized as the 'age of discovery', when English explorers and merchants came into contact with alien spaces and foreign peoples, and began working out ways to describe and categorize them, trade with them, and dispossess them. Knowledge about places far beyond Europe was becoming ever more commonplace in London, and Shakespeare's contemporaries were beginning to imagine themselves as global players. This course asks how Shakespeare's drama staged these alien spaces and foreign peoples for his audiences. We will read The Comedy of Errors, The Merchant of Venice, Titus Andronicus, Othello, Antony and Cleopatra, The Tempest, and The Winter's Tale.

ENGL 38568 - Victorian Cosmopolitanism (3 cr)

General

Course Title
Victorian Cosmopolitanism

Catalog Description
Cosmopolitanism is often used today to describe an ethical commitment to world citizenship or a position of mobility and privilege (or both). This course examines the way cosmopolitanism emerged as a discourse in nineteenth-century Britain and the way it can be used to describe the formal and thematic concerns of Victorian writers. At a time when the advent of railways, steamships and telegraphs and the growth of the British Empire were making Britain seem inseparable from a wider world, writers grappled with questions such as: should local or universal concerns dominate? What does it mean to be British and part of a vast empire? Is the city a reflection of the world or of the nation? We will examine how these questions shaped and were shaped by poetry, novels, non-fiction writing and visual culture.

ENGL 39001 - Twentieth Century Poetry and Poetics (3 cr)

General

Course Title
Twentieth Century Poetry and Poetics

Catalog Description
This course will explore British, Irish and American poetry of the twentieth century, with an emphasis on the modernist movement, in which poets attempted to “make new” both the technical elements of poetry (metrical and syntactical rhythm, sound and rhyme, line and stanza organization) and its subject matter. Topics to be discussed include poetry’s approach to mass (or popular) culture, its exploration of the idea of the object, its connections to performance and recitation, and, above all, its fascination with history and temporality. In taking account of the vast transformations of the period—-two world wars, rapid urbanization, nascent decolonization movements, ever-increasing commodification—we will also necessarily attend to the shifting geographies of modernism. We will address modernist poetry’s deliberate difficulty, perceived elitism and failure to engage with material social relations (or outright reactionary-seeming politics). At the end of the course we will also explore some poetry from the later twentieth century, associated with L*A*N*G*U*A*G*E poetry and its aftermath. Works to be explored include those of Yeats, Eliot, Pound, Lewis, Williams, Stevens, Cummings, HD, Stein, Moore, Hughes, Zukovsky, Oppen, Auden, Ashbery, Bernstein, Armantrout and others. We will read not only poems, but poetic statements and criticism written both by poets and critics based in universities.

ENGL 49448 - Romantic Novel (3 cr)

General

Course Title
Romantic Novel

Catalog Description
In Britain, the years 1780 to 1833 witnessed the blossoming of Romanticism in poetry and expository prose, and historically the works that are seen as most embodying the literary movement are taken usually from these two genres. However, the Romantic Period was also significant in the continuing development of the novel, with the advancement or emergence of notable sub-genres such as gothic novels (of Radcliffe, Lewis and others), jacobin novels (of Godwin, Wollstonecraft and others), novels of comic domestic realism (of Austen, Edgeworth and others), satirical novels (of Peacock and Hogg), historical novels (of Scott), orientalist fiction (of Beckford), and quasi-science fiction (of Mary Shelley). What connection, if any, do any of the important novels of the period, and the genres they represent, have with traditional Romanticism? One central focus of the course will be an attempt to answer this question, and to help with this, a small sampling of poetry and expository prose works will attend our readings of the novels. A concurrent emphasis of the course will be to consider these novels in all their individual complexity -- beyond their possible connections with Romantic texts of other genres -- in order to give a fuller picture of the era's myriad and conflicting concerns. In this way, the novels in this course will be studied for the ways they speak to the various social, political, and philosophical contexts out of which they sprang, in keeping with Richard Maxwell's understanding of the novel as 'a form deeply open to politics and history'. One or more novel by each the following authors will likely be considered: Jane Austen, William Beckford, Maria Edgeworth, William Godwin, James Hogg, Matthew Lewis, Charles Maturin, Thomas Love Peacock, Ann Radcliffe, Walter Scott, Mary Shelley, and Mary Wollstonecraft. Critical essays on individual works, the novel genre during the Romantic period, and the novel genre generally will be studied as well.

ENGL 49449 - Chaucer (3 cr)

General

Course Title
Chaucer

Catalog Description
This course is an exploration of Chaucer's Canterbury Tales and a pilgrimage of sorts in its own right considered the greatest medieval English poem by the greatest medieval English poet. Particular attention will be paid to the cultural, social, political, and religious contexts of the poem, to Middle English as a literary language, and to the use of new media in the exploration of old texts.

Film and Media Studies Department

Overview

The Hunter College Department of Film and Media Studies offers two undergraduate degree programs in the production and critical analysis of film and media. One program leads toward a major in Film, combining film history and theory with film production. The other leads toward a major in Media Studies, combining critical media analysis with creative practice using a mix of contemporary media forms (video, animation, digital imaging and graphics, web and interactive production). Our curriculum is founded on the integration of theory and practice. Leading scholars in history, aesthetics, media policy, critical theory and alternative and international practices provide students with a broad base in analytical thinking. Courses deal with subjects such as the history and aesthetics of film, video, television and new media; genre studies; the history, production and distribution of print and broadcast news; media representations of race, class and gender; and the intricate relationships among the mass media, popular culture and society. The department's production courses encourage students to work creatively in a variety of existing and emerging media forms. Courses include narrative film production (including screenwriting and directing), documentary production, television production, journalism and emerging media (including web design, animation, physical computing and game programming). The department is distinguished by award-winning faculty who are active in their respective fields.

What can I do with my degree in Film and Media Studies?

Skills honed in the major include research and communication skills, critical thinking, project management, and a diverse array of media production from digital imaging to video and television production to web and interactive production. In addition to careers within the film and media industries, graduates are attractive to the publishing industry, advertising, web production, tech startups, animation, game production and communications fields as well as other related industries.

Learning Outcomes: Integrated Media Arts BA

1. Demonstrate a proficiency with the tools and techniques of contemporary media production and apply them to a diverse range of projects.
2. Produce original work that carefully calibrates form and content across a variety of media platforms and communicates effectively with an intended audience.
3. Develop an artistic practice and professional media skill set.
4. Cultivate an understanding of historical and contemporary practices in Documentary and Emerging Media.
5. Display an ability to closely analyze media using critical concepts and theoretical frameworks.
6. Thoughtfully critique creative work and constructively evaluate feedback.

Learning Outcomes: Film BA

1. To knowledgeably navigate an increasingly complex and changing media environment and culture.
2. To synthesize and expand on the knowledge base of the field through independent research.
3. To produce work in light of historical and contemporary practices and developments.
4. To apply critical concepts and theoretical frameworks to texts.

Learning Outcomes: Media Studies BA

1. To knowledgeably navigate an increasingly complex and changing media environment and culture.
2. To synthesize and expand on the knowledge base of the field through independent research.

Program Description

The Department of Film & Media Studies' Film Major combines theoretical perspectives and practical production experience to provide students with a thorough understanding of film and of their creative potential as filmmakers.The Film major provides two concentration track options: The Film Analysis and Criticism Track (36 cr.) is a film studies program with coursework evenly divided between film history, film style and close analysis, and courses devoted to issues of genre, theory and representation, The Film Production Track (36 cr.) is a program of informed practice where students take an equal balance of hands-on film production courses and analytical courses.
Both tracks consist of a broad range of required and elective courses allowing students to tailor their program to their interests. Both tracks also offer the option of a capstone project (thesis film, thesis screenplay or analytical thesis) which can be used to earn departmental honors if the student qualifies.The film program also provides opportunities for students seeking a film minor and for students who wish to follow a film track as a double major.
The major must be declared with the film advisor.

Some courses in this categories carry more than 3 credits (the "STEM variant" courses). Students who elect to take these courses may apply only three credits towards fulfilling the Common Core.

AND

Earn at least 3 credits from the following:
- Flexible Core Creative Expression

AND

Earn at least 3 credits from the following:
- Flexible Core U.S. Experience in Its Diversity

AND

Earn at least 3 credits from the following:

Additional Comments:
Students may take no more than two courses from one department or program to fulfill categories Common Core.

Transfer Students

- Transfer students who have earned an AA/AS degree from an accredited institution, including CUNY, and who matriculated in fall 2013 and after will have fulfilled the Common Core.
- For all other CUNY transfer students, any unmet Common Core requirements must be completed while matriculated at Hunter.
- Non-CUNY transfer students without an AA/AS degree should confer with their adviser to determine whether they have met CCC requirements.

2nd Degree Students

- Students who have earned a baccalaureate degree from an accredited institution are exempt from the General Education requirements

Hunter Core Requirement

Several courses within this major may fulfill parts of the Hunter Core Requirement (CUNY Common Core Requirement [CCCR], Concurrent Requirements). When selecting courses, it may be to a student's advantage to choose courses that count toward the Hunter Core Requirement and also advance the student on the path to the major.

In the case of the Film major, the course that meets CCCR is:

FILM10100 Introduction to Cinema	Creative Expression

Degree Requirements - College Option/Hunter Focus

Type
Completion Requirement

Earn at least 12 credits
The Hunter Focus consists of 12 credits total. The composition of these credits will vary depending on the student's matriculation status and language proficiency. All students are required to complete the Foreign Language requirement; after that is met, students begin Concentrated Study.

Exceptions:

- Students in the School of Nursing may fulfill their entire 12 credits of Hunter Focus by taking three "STEM variant" science courses in addition to the STEM courses used to fulfill the Common Core.
- Students with a joint major in Education may fulfill their entire 12 credits with courses in Education.

Hunter Focus: Foreign Language

Students must attain fourth-semester proficiency in a foreign language. For students with no prior language courses, this proficiency typically consists of completing four courses or a total of 12 credits. Students who have prior language courses, including those from high school, should consult an adviser. Students may apply only one course at each level (Elementary level 1, Elementary level 2, Intermediate level 3, and Intermediate level 4) toward the Hunter Focus. Intensive courses can be used to satisfy the two-course sequence at the Elementary and at the Intermediate levels.

Hunter Focus: Concentrated Study

Once students have completed the Foreign Language requirement, any credits remaining from the 12 required for the Hunter Focus will be used on Concentrated Study. Concentrated Study refers to courses that fulfill requirements for a declared minor, a second major or a certificate. The number of credits required for Concentrated Study ranges from 0-12 and is determined by the number of credits in a foreign language a student must take.

CREDITS OF FOREIGN LANGUAGE NEEDED	CREDITS OF CONCENTRATED STUDY NEEDED
3	9
6	6
9	3*

For students who matriculated prior to fall 2019, these three credits are waived.*

For students who matriculated in fall 2019 or after, and who do not also complete a second major, minor, or certificate program, these three credits shall be from a course, at the 200-level or above, on a topic related to the language used for the Foreign Language requirement, in the target language or in English translation.*

Transfer Students

All transfer students must complete the Hunter Focus. For students who first matriculated in an associate program, the number of credits required in the Hunter Focus varies with the number of credits transferred.

CREDITS/DEGREES TRANSFERRED	CREDITS/REQUIRED
Fewer than 30	12
30 or more, without an AA/AS degree	9
AA/AS degree	6

Students who first matriculate in a baccalaureate program must complete 12 credits of Hunter Focus. Any "College Option" credits completed at another CUNY senior college will be applied to the Hunter Focus.

Hunter Focus: Foreign Language

Transfer students must reach or work toward fourth-semester proficiency in a foreign language. The number of credits needed to complete the Foreign Language requirement is determined by the student's transfer status, as defined above, and language proficiency at the time of matriculation. Students who have prior language courses, including those from high school, should consult an adviser.

Hunter Focus: Concentrated Study

Once transfer students have completed the Foreign Language requirement, any credits remaining from the Hunter Focus will be used on Concentrated Study as described above.

2nd Degree Students

- Students who have earned a baccalaureate degree from an accredited institution are exempt from the General Education requirements

Degree Requirements - Pluralism and Diversity

Type
Completion Requirement

Fulfill ALL of the following requirements:

Earn at least 3 credits from the following:

- Pluralism and Diversity Requirement – Group A

A course focusing on scholarship about major practical or theoretical issues (e.g., artistic, economic, geographic, literary, political, scientific or social) that emerge from, are reflected in or are principally derived from the historical conditions, perspectives and/or intellectual traditions of non-European societies, particularly those of Africa, Asia, Latin America or those indigenous to the Americas.

AND

Earn at least 3 credits from the following:

- Pluralism and Diversity Requirement – Group B

A course focusing on scholarship about major practical or theoretical issues (e.g., artistic, economic, geographic, literary, political, scientific or social) that emerge from, are reflected in or are principally derived from the historical conditions, perspectives, immigrant experiences and/or intellectual traditions of one or more of the following groups in the United States of America: African Americans, Asian Americans, Latino Americans and Native Americans.

AND

Earn at least 3 credits from the following:

- Pluralism and Diversity Requirement – Group C

A course focusing on scholarship about major practical or theoretical issues (e.g., artistic, economic, geographic, literary, political, scientific or social) that emerge from, are reflected in or are principally derived from the historical conditions, perspectives and/or intellectual traditions of women and/or issues of gender or sexual orientation.

AND

Earn at least 3 credits from the following:

- Pluralism and Diversity Requirement – Group D

A course focusing on scholarship about major practical or theoretical issues (e.g., artistic, economic, geographic, literary, political, scientific or social) that emerge from, are reflected in or are principally derived from the historical conditions, perspectives and/or intellectual traditions of Europe, including the ways in which pluralism and diversity have been addressed.

Additional Comments:
Students must complete four courses designated for the Pluralism and Diversity Requirement, one from each of four categories. The four categories of Pluralism and Diversity focus on major practical or theoretical issues that emerge from, are reflected in, or are principally derived from the historical conditions, perspectives, and/or intellectual traditions of the following:

A. Non-European societies, particularly those of Africa, Asia, Latin America, or those indigenous to the Americas;

B. One or more of the following groups in the US: African Americans, Asian Americans, Latino Americans, and Native Americans;

C. Women and/or issues of gender or sexual orientation;

D. Europe, including ways in which pluralism and diversity have been addressed.

Any one course with a Pluralism and Diversity designation can satisfy only one Pluralism and Diversity category but may also fulfill any other requirement.

Transfer Students

Transfer students must take at least two courses designated for different categories of the Pluralism and Diversity requirement. The number of courses required in Pluralism and Diversity is determined by the number of credits transferred.

Program Description
Training future journalists to report the news accurately and ethically is essential to the future of the news industry. While a major or minor in journalism is not a prerequisite to work in the news industry, many news organizations do prefer to hire students that have this credential because these employers are familiar with journalism curricula. This minor offers students the opportunity to pursue an 18-credit minor in Journalism, affording them a potentially beneficial credential when seeking internships, fellowships, or jobs with news organizations. Media Studies majors may earn the Journalism minor and in that event, will be able to count MEDIA18000 Introduction to Media Studies for both the major and the minor.

Program Description

The Department of Film and Media Studies major in Media Studies combines critical media analysis with creative practice using a mix of contemporary media forms (video, animation, digital imaging and graphics, web and interactive production). Students are encouraged to develop a creative voice that is socially aware and engaged and can find expression across a range of contemporary media technologies. Leading scholars in history, aesthetics, media policy, critical theory and alternative and international practices provide students with a broad base in analytical thinking. Courses deal with subjects such as the history and aesthetics of film, video, television and new media; genre studies; the history, production and distribution of print and broadcast news; media representations of race, class and gender; and the intricate relationships among the mass media, popular culture and society. The department's production courses encourage students to work creatively in a variety of existing and emerging media forms. Courses include narrative film production (including screenwriting and directing), documentary production, television production, journalism and emerging media (including web design, animation, physical computing and game programming). The department is distinguished by award-winning faculty who are active in their respective fields.

The major is composed of required and elective courses in media analysis and production for a total of 36 credits. The Department offers a General Media Studies Major or students may elect to major in an area of concentration. The concentrations are Media Analysis and Criticism, Documentary and Television Production, Journalism, and Emerging Media. Just as with the General Media Studies Major each concentration is 36 credits, however the curriculum has been tailored to help the student develop greater specialization in the area of concentration.

The media analysis concentration develops critical thinking in students and offers students an in-depth understanding of the field of media studies. It includes the study of Media Representations and Media Industries, Technologies and Politics.

The Documentary and Television Production concentration is intended to give students foundational knowledge in the theory and practice of linear non-fiction video and related digital media skills. Students in this concentration will also specialize in one of three advanced areas: Documentary Production, Experimental Media Production or Studio Television Production .

The journalism concentration offers a liberal arts approach to the study and production of multimedia news. Students will learn to gather information through observation, interviews, and research and to communicate it through clear and compelling writing enhanced by photography, video, audio, and interactive features. In addition to a toolkit for newsgathering and story production, students will learn how to be more critical news consumers and their own fact checkers through courses that offer a critical analysis of news and media.

The Emerging Media concentration gives students foundational knowledge in the theory and practice of digital media as a creative and investigative form of production. Students in this concentration may elect to specialize in various areas of production including Web Production, Interactive Media Production and 3D Imaging Production or may elect a broad curriculum of study from the Emerging Media courses. The curriculum interweaves technical instruction with aesthetic, communicative and cultural production and research to help a student establish a cohesive portfolio in new media.

Transfer Students

- Transfer students who have earned an AA/AS degree from an accredited institution, including CUNY, and who matriculated in fall 2013 and after will have fulfilled the Common Core.
- For all other CUNY transfer students, any unmet Common Core requirements must be completed while matriculated at Hunter.
- Non-CUNY transfer students without an AA/AS degree should confer with their adviser to determine whether they have met CCC requirements.

2nd Degree Students

- Students who have earned a baccalaureate degree from an accredited institution are exempt from the General Education requirements

Degree Requirements - College Option/Hunter Focus

Type
Completion Requirement

Earn at least 12 credits

The Hunter Focus consists of 12 credits total. The composition of these credits will vary depending on the student’s matriculation status and language proficiency. All students are required to complete the Foreign Language requirement; after that is met, students begin Concentrated Study.

Exceptions:

- Students in the School of Nursing may fulfill their entire 12 credits of Hunter Focus by taking three “STEM variant” science courses in addition to the STEM courses used to fulfill the Common Core.
- Students with a joint major in Education may fulfill their entire 12 credits with courses in Education.

Hunter Focus: Foreign Language

Students must attain fourth-semester proficiency in a foreign language. For students with no prior language courses, this proficiency typically consists of completing four courses or a total of 12 credits. Students who have prior language courses, including those from high school, should consult an adviser. Students may apply only one course at each level (Elementary level 1, Elementary level 2, Intermediate level 3, and Intermediate level 4) toward the Hunter Focus. Intensive courses can be used to satisfy the two-course sequence at the Elementary and at the Intermediate levels.

Hunter Focus: Concentrated Study

Once students have completed the Foreign Language requirement, any credits remaining from the 12 required for the Hunter Focus will be used on Concentrated Study. Concentrated Study refers to courses that fulfill requirements for a declared minor, a second major or a certificate. The number of credits required for Concentrated Study ranges from 0-12 and is determined by the number of credits in a foreign language a student must take.

30 or more, without an AA/AS degree	9
AA/AS degree	6

Students who first matriculate in a baccalaureate program must complete 12 credits of Hunter Focus. Any “College Option” credits completed at another CUNY senior college will be applied to the Hunter Focus.

Hunter Focus: Foreign Language

Transfer students must reach or work toward fourth-semester proficiency in a foreign language. The number of credits needed to complete the Foreign Language requirement is determined by the student’s transfer status, as defined above, and language proficiency at the time of matriculation. Students who have prior language courses, including those from high school, should consult an adviser.

Hunter Focus: Concentrated Study

Once transfer students have completed the Foreign Language requirement, any credits remaining from the Hunter Focus will be used on Concentrated Study as described above.

2nd Degree Students

- Students who have earned a baccalaureate degree from an accredited institution are exempt from the General Education requirements

Degree Requirements - Pluralism and Diversity

Type
Completion Requirement

Fulfill ALL of the following requirements:

Earn at least 3 credits from the following:
- Pluralism and Diversity Requirement – Group A

A course focusing on scholarship about major practical or theoretical issues (e.g., artistic, economic, geographic, literary, political, scientific or social) that emerge from, are reflected in or are principally derived from the historical conditions, perspectives and/or intellectual traditions of non-European societies, particularly those of Africa, Asia, Latin America or those indigenous to the Americas.

AND

Earn at least 3 credits from the following:
- Pluralism and Diversity Requirement – Group B

A course focusing on scholarship about major practical or theoretical issues (e.g., artistic, economic, geographic, literary, political, scientific or social) that emerge from, are reflected in or are principally derived from the historical conditions, perspectives, immigrant experiences and/or intellectual traditions of one or more of the following groups in the United States of America: African Americans, Asian Americans, Latino Americans and Native Americans.

AND

Earn at least 3 credits from the following:
- Pluralism and Diversity Requirement – Group C

A course focusing on scholarship about major practical or theoretical issues (e.g., artistic, economic, geographic, literary, political, scientific or social) that emerge from, are reflected in or are principally derived from the historical conditions, perspectives and/or intellectual traditions of women and/or issues of gender or sexual orientation.

AND

Earn at least 3 credits from the following:
- Pluralism and Diversity Requirement – Group D

A course focusing on scholarship about major practical or theoretical issues (e.g., artistic, economic, geographic, literary, political, scientific or social) that emerge from, are reflected in or are principally derived from the historical conditions, perspectives and/or intellectual traditions of Europe, including the ways in which pluralism and diversity have been addressed.

Additional Comments:
Students must complete four courses designated for the Pluralism and Diversity Requirement, one from each of four categories. The four categories of Pluralism and Diversity focus on major practical or theoretical issues that emerge from, are reflected in, or are principally derived from the historical conditions, perspectives, and/or intellectual traditions of the following:

A. Non-European societies, particularly those of Africa, Asia, Latin America, or those indigenous to the Americas;

B. One or more of the following groups in the US: African Americans, Asian Americans, Latino Americans, and Native Americans;

C. Women and/or issues of gender or sexual orientation;

D. Europe, including ways in which pluralism and diversity have been addressed.

Any one course with a Pluralism and Diversity designation can satisfy only one Pluralism and Diversity category but may also fulfill any other requirement.

Transfer Students

Transfer students must take at least two courses designated for different categories of the Pluralism and Diversity requirement. The number of courses required in Pluralism and Diversity is determined by the number of credits transferred.

CREDITS TRANSFERRED	COURSES REQUIRED
Fewer than 31	4
31 or more	2

Any one course with a Pluralism and Diversity designation can only satisfy one Pluralism and Diversity category but may also fulfill any other requirement.

2nd Degree Students

- Students who have earned a baccalaureate degree from an accredited institution are exempt from the General Education requirements

Degree Requirements - Writing Intensive

Type
Completion Requirement

Complete at least 1 course in the following course sets:

- Writing Intensive

Transfer Students

Transfer students must take at least one Writing Intensive course, designated with a “W” in the catalog, at Hunter College. The number of Writing Intensive courses required is determined by the number of credits transferred.

CREDITS TRANSFERRED	"W" COURSES REQUIRED
Fewer than 30	3
31-59	2
60 or more	1

Note: Specific sections of courses containing significant writing are listed with a W designation in the Schedule of Classes. Please note that not all sections of a course are necessarily offered with significant writing. To satisfy the Writing Requirement a section designated as W in the Schedule of Classes must be taken.

2nd Degree Students

- Students who have earned a baccalaureate degree from an accredited institution are exempt from the General Education requirements

Major Requirements - Overall

Type
Completion Requirement

Earn at least 36 credits

The major must be declared in with an undergraduate media studies adviser. (see department website for adviser schedules http://fm.hunter.cuny.edu/). Students will be able to do a Media Studies BA: General Media Studies Major but may choose one of the concentrations in the major. These concentrations are:

- Media Studies BA: Concentration in Media Analysis and Criticism
- Media Studies BA: Concentration in Documentary and Television Production
- Media Studies BA: Concentration in Journalism
- Media Studies BA: Concentration in Emerging Media

However, these concentrations are optional; as long as they satisfy the General Media Studies Major requirements, students may combine courses from different concentrations. Students majoring in Media Studies must take the following introductory courses. These courses count toward the major.

- MEDIA 18000
- FILMP 15000/MEDP 15000
- FILMP 16000/MEDP 16000

A maximum of 6 credits in FILM or FILMP courses at the 200-or 300-level may be applied to the Major in Media Studies. Students must meet any prerequisites for these courses. Courses in Independent studies, Honors Project, Internship, MEDIA 369:00 College to Career: Media, or FILM 369.00 College to Career: FILM do not count toward the major. Students must consult a program adviser to plan choice and sequence of courses.

Double Majors

Students may choose to complete a major in the Department of Film and Media Studies and a second major in another department. A student cannot declare a double major in Film and Media Studies. Because of the intensive nature of the production courses in both Film and Media Studies, it is strongly recommended that all students take no more than two production courses per semester.

Honors

To qualify for departmental honors in Film or Media Studies, a student must have a 3.5 grade point average in major courses and a 3.0 grade point average overall. The student must also either complete an Honors Project FILM 40200 or MEDIA 40200, approved by the Department Policy and Curriculum Committee, with a grade of A; or a 400-level production or analytical seminar course with a grade of A. See the department for more information.

Course Title
Compar Std Ee Cinema: Polish, Czech, Russ., So. Slavic. Discuss Cultural, Politcl., Historic Aspects

Catalog Description
The course is a comparative study of cultural, political, and historical aspects of Russian, Polish, Czechoslovakian, Romanian, and East German cinema as a visual art form. The course examines samples of East European cinema addressing a respective country's history and social conditions starting with World War II time and covering both the Communist era and post-Communist period. By the end of the course, students will acquire critical tools to provide an informed verbal and written analysis of East European films as cultural texts.

FILMP 26000 - Introduction to 2D Animation (3 cr)

General

Course Title
Introduction to 2D Animation

Catalog Description
This hands-on class is an introduction to animation using 2D digital tools. We will explore historical precursors to digital animation by viewing the work of experimental and animated film as well as contemporary art and animation. Class time will consist of in-class demos, screenings, and software tutorials. Students will be encouraged to create personal, documentary and experimental 2D animations with the tools they learn in class. Animation in general is a highly technical field, the objective of this class is to explore your personal creativity and arrive at your own style. Topics covered will include producing a flip-book, story boarding, stop motion animation, vector animation, motion graphics, sound and video production.

FILMP 36500 - 3D Virtual Environments (3 cr)

General

Course Title
3D Virtual Environments

Catalog Description
This production course is an introduction to the fundamentals of 3D computer graphics. In this project-based class, students will learn how to construct 3D virtual environments using the software Autodesk Maya and Substance Painter with hands-on and in-class exercises, including modeling 3D assets, lighting and shading 3D models, applying custom textures and visual effects, and rendering of final images. They will also consider 3D computer graphic imagery within a broader artistic context, learn from the practices of contemporary artists and storytellers, and be encouraged to think critically and conceptually. By the end of the course, students will have the foundational skills to construct 3D virtual environments and will be able to begin building a portfolio with 3D computer graphic work.

MEDIA 28000 - Understanding New Media (3 cr)

General

Course Title
Understanding New Media

Catalog Description
This analytical course explores the convergence of media, communications technologies, art design, and culture. This course is intended to familiarize students with important approaches in new media, focusing on the history of the computer as a medium and the conceptual history of interactivity in art and communication. Artists are at the forefront of technological revolutions. Whether designing computer games, producing web sites, writing software, or working on intelligent systems, artists work on a daily basis consuming and producing electronic cultural artifacts. Cybertechnologies have created new contexts for understanding culture. Referring to popular media, science fiction, computer games, and artists's projects, we'll explore how technology has been and will cotinue to be a key component of culture.

MEDP 26000 - Introduction to 2D Animation (3 cr)

General

Course Title
Introduction to 2D Animation

Catalog Description
This hands-on class is an introduction to animation using 2D digital tools. We will explore historical precursors to digital animation by viewing the work of experimental and animated film as well as contemporary art and animation. Class time will consist of in-class demos, screenings, and software tutorials. Students will be encouraged to create personal, documentary and experimental 2D animations with the tools they learn in class. Animation in general is a highly technical field, the objective of this class is to explore your personal creativity and arrive at your own style. Topics covered will include producing a flip-book, story boarding, stop motion animation, vector animation, motion graphics, sound and video production.

MEDP 26200 - Motion Graphics (3 cr)

General

Course Title
Motion Graphics

Catalog Description
This course provides a practical introduction to the creative possibilities of producing computer-generated motion graphics.Temporal development is the core of many digital arts, which include video, digital animation, music, web-casting and new media performance. This course explores the theory and application of motion graphics that are created, processed, and then re-presented in time.Through hands-on, creative projects, students learn After Effects and develop production and workflow strategies for digital time-based media, like audio clips, movie clips and animations to reach an understanding of the key characteristics of time-based digital arts. Assigned projects will cover topics such as storyboarding, pre-production, digital data collection, fundamental theories of choreography (sound and image co- ordination), image manipulation and output formats. Projects will require in and out of class time. The practical research assignments are supported by lectures, screenings, and discussions about examples of time-based art.

General

Course Title
Web Design Projects

Catalog Description
This project-based class is designed to give students the experience of solving practical problems in web production and to add to the advanced student's web design portfolio with a comprehensive project. Students will work independently and in teams on a large-scale collaborative project. Students will learn the entire process of web interface design from project idea to completion. They will learn to collaborate in design teams, present work-in-progress, perform user testing, and meet deadlines. Projects are designed for non-commercial, in-house (CUNY) or other non-for-profit organizations. Using the cycle of design, implementation, and user testing and revision, students will learn how to design a successful website.

MEDP 36500 - 3D Virtual Environments (3 cr)

General

Course Title
3D Virtual Environments

Catalog Description
This production course is an introduction to the fundamentals of 3D computer graphics. In this project-based class, students will learn how to construct 3D virtual environments using the software Autodesk Maya and Substance Painter with hands-on and in-class exercises, including modeling 3D assets, lighting and shading 3D models, applying custom textures and visual effects, and rendering of final images. They will also consider 3D computer graphic imagery within a broader artistic context, learn from the practices of contemporary artists and storytellers, and be encouraged to think critically and conceptually. By the end of the course, students will have the foundational skills to construct 3D virtual environments and will be able to begin building a portfolio with 3D computer graphic work.

Geography and Environmental Science Department

Overview

The department offers majors in Geography and Environmental Studies, a five-year combined BA/MA program in Environmental Studies and Adolescent Education-Earth Science, and minors in Geography, Environmental Studies and Geology. Our programs focus on urban and social geography; globalization and international development; earth systems, environmental science, and physical geography; geographic information science, remote sensing and digital mapping; environmental policy and sustainability; and social studies and environmental education. In addition, students learn how to use advanced analytical skills, including quantitative, qualitative, modeling, and geospatial research methods in order to address the vital problems humanity is facing today. In addition to comprehensive classroom instruction, the department offers field trips and field courses in geography and environmental science.

A major in Geography is designed to prepare students to understand our world's changing social and natural environments in their interaction and using concepts of place, space, distance, and location. In many instances, geographers make maps to analyze differences between places and to seek explanations for those differences. Most importantly, Geography not only will broaden your knowledge of the world and how human and natural systems interact but will also equip you with the skills needed to seek solutions to many pressing problems, from the impacts and consequences of climate change, depletion of natural resources, and pollution to poverty, inequality, geopolitical crises, migration, and insecurity. These skills include critical thinking, spatial analysis, and analytical writing. In addition to classroom learning and field trips, students learn by doing research projects together with community advocacy groups in New York City.

Geography majors are encouraged to pursue the course of study that best fits their interests while also exploring the three concentration areas that the department offers: Cities and Globalization; Digital Mapping and Geographic Information Science; and Sustainability. There is an option that prepares students for temporary certification in New York State to teach social studies at grades K-12.

The Environmental Science major offers a common core of courses and an interdisciplinary approach that allows students to focus on environmental policy and management or earth systems science. Our major prepares students to identify and describe the components of Earth's environment and their interconnections. Our goal is to equip students with theoretical and practical tools to synthesize the body of knowledge presented in the course work and to address real world problems. We seek to accomplish this goal by fostering classroom dynamics where assumptions, methods and findings are critically evaluated. After choosing a concentration, students take advanced physical science courses for the Environmental Earth Science concentration and human geography and social science courses for the Environmental Management Policy concentration. Coursework covers subjects that include weather and climate, climate change, environmental hazards, fluid dynamics, sustainability, ecology, oceanography, conservation, urban problems and their solutions and the global impact of humans on the Earth system.

What can I do with my degree in Geography and Environmental Studies?

Courses in all of these fields are valuable parts of a general liberal education, developing an awareness of earth phenomena and the role these play in people's lives. In addition, through integration of content knowledge, applied skills, and internships, our graduates are prepared for both graduate study and immediate employment in the public, private, and non-profit sectors.

Our website features stories about our former students who equally excel in academic and professional worlds. Courses for Geography and Environmental Studies majors are valuable parts of a liberal arts education, developing an awareness of how earth systems work and the role these play in people's lives. They also educate students about the challenges humanity faces in the era of global climate change, geopolitical and public health crises, growing inequality, and migration. Both majors prepare students for graduate degrees in earth and environmental science, geography, geoinformatics, and related fields. Many students successfully pursue top graduate programs and receive prestigious internships and fellowships such as those from the National Center for Atmospheric Research (NCAR) and the National Atmospheric and Space Administration (NASA), U. S. Environmental Protection Agency and Department of Environmental Protection. Many also become professionals whose expertise in the above areas is widely used by the governments and administrations of New York City and New York State, the U.S. Bureau of the Census, and private industry; they also develop careers as geography/earth science teachers.

Teacher Education Pathway

Students planning to teach this subject in grades 7-12 should look at the School of Education: Program List for information about their programs that lead to the recommendation for New York State Initial Certification required to be a lead teacher in NYS public schools.

Learning Outcomes: Geography BA

1. Students will gain a broad-based knowledge of geography. They will know specifically the sub-fields of human geography physical geography and geographic techniques.
2. Students will develop critical thinking skills and understand the methods of scientific explanation as related to geography and be able to synthesize and apply geographic knowledge to find solutions to real-world problems.
3. Students will strengthen effective skills in written and oral communication and be able to communicate geographic knowledge in written oral and cartographic forms.
4. Students will comprehend the causes spatial patterns and impacts of globalization.
5. Graduates will seek employment consistent with their interest in geography and/or pursue professional school or graduate education or be satisfied that the degree met other personal objectives

Learning Outcomes: Environmental Studies BA

1. Students will acquire broad knowledge of the Earth environment using a systems approach to identify and describe its history components their functions and interactions at multiple spatial and temporal scales.
2. Students will acquire knowledge of the Earth's key trends in climate and environmental issues in their socio-political context.
3. Students will gather measure synthesize and evaluate data from diverse sources using visual analytical and statistical approaches to describe and interpret relationships and trends and make predictions about future changes.
4. Students will communicate effectively in the language of the discipline incorporating written oral and visual methods. Students will communicate to audiences ranging from scientific to policy-oriented. Students will be prepared to become active informed citizens ready to have an impact on society.
5. Students will build knowledge about the environmental dimensions of systematic racism and other types of oppression such as those based on gender or religious identity. Students will be able to apply scientific evidence and theories that explain environmental injustices and use environmental knowledge and skills to advance just and sustainable societies.

Program Description

The major offers two concentrations which are organized to promote an intensive understanding of contemporary physical science, specifically earth system science as it relates to environmental issues, and an intensive understanding of a system-based approach to the dynamic nature of human-environmental interactions particularly as manifest in contemporary politics and economics. The concentrations are Earth System Science Track and Human Dimensions of Earth Systems Track. It is suggested that students select a concentration (also referred to as a “subplan” in this catalog) as they enter the major with the understanding that the choice is not final at this stage and students can switch concentrations as they advance in the program. To aid in this process, the curriculum offers a common core of required courses, as well as sufficient overlap within the required elective courses. It is strongly recommended that students considering this major meet with the departmental adviser to discuss their interests and program of study since courses may be added or deleted as the college’s and department’s offerings change. One or more courses not listed below may be included in a student’s concentration with the advice and consent of the adviser. See departmental website for additional information about this program.

Additional Comments:
Students may take no more than two courses from one department or program to fulfill categories Common Core.

Transfer Students

- Transfer students who have earned an AA/AS degree from an accredited institution, including CUNY, and who matriculated in fall 2013 and after will have fulfilled the Common Core.
- For all other CUNY transfer students, any unmet Common Core requirements must be completed while matriculated at Hunter.
- Non-CUNY transfer students without an AA/AS degree should confer with their adviser to determine whether they have met CCC requirements.

2nd Degree Students

- Students who have earned a baccalaureate degree from an accredited institution are exempt from the General Education requirements

Degree Requirements - College Option/Hunter Focus

Type
Completion Requirement

Earn at least 12 credits
The Hunter Focus consists of 12 credits total. The composition of these credits will vary depending on the student's matriculation status and language proficiency. All students are required to complete the Foreign Language requirement; after that is met, students begin Concentrated Study.

Exceptions:

- Students in the School of Nursing may fulfill their entire 12 credits of Hunter Focus by taking three "STEM variant" science courses in addition to the STEM courses used to fulfill the Common Core.
- Students with a joint major in Education may fulfill their entire 12 credits with courses in Education.

Hunter Focus: Foreign Language

Students must attain fourth-semester proficiency in a foreign language. For students with no prior language courses, this proficiency typically consists of completing four courses or a total of 12 credits. Students who have prior language courses, including those from high school, should consult an adviser. Students may apply only one course at each level (Elementary level 1, Elementary level 2, Intermediate level 3, and Intermediate level 4) toward the Hunter Focus. Intensive courses can be used to satisfy the two-course sequence at the Elementary and at the Intermediate levels.

Hunter Focus: Concentrated Study

Once students have completed the Foreign Language requirement, any credits remaining from the 12 required for the Hunter Focus will be used on Concentrated Study. Concentrated Study refers to courses that fulfill requirements for a declared minor, a second major or a certificate. The number of credits required for Concentrated Study ranges from 0-12 and is determined by the number of credits in a foreign language a student must take.

CREDITS OF FOREIGN LANGUAGE NEEDED	CREDITS OF CONCENTRATED STUDY NEEDED
3	9
6	6
9	3*

For students who matriculated prior to fall 2019, these three credits are waived.*

For students who matriculated in fall 2019 or after, and who do not also complete a second major, minor, or certificate program, these three credits shall be from a course, at the 200-level or above, on a topic related to the language used for the Foreign Language requirement, in the target language or in English translation.*

Transfer Students

All transfer students must complete the Hunter Focus. For students who first matriculated in an associate program, the number of credits required in the Hunter Focus varies with the number of credits transferred.

CREDITS/DEGREES TRANSFERRED	CREDITS/REQUIRED
Fewer than 30	12
30 or more, without an AA/AS degree	9
AA/AS degree	6

Students who first matriculate in a baccalaureate program must complete 12 credits of Hunter Focus. Any "College Option" credits completed at another CUNY senior college will be applied to the Hunter Focus.

Hunter Focus: Foreign Language

Transfer students must reach or work toward fourth-semester proficiency in a foreign language. The number of credits needed to complete the Foreign Language requirement is determined by the student's transfer status, as defined above, and language proficiency at the time of matriculation. Students who have prior language courses, including those from high school, should consult an adviser.

Hunter Focus: Concentrated Study

Once transfer students have completed the Foreign Language requirement, any credits remaining from the Hunter Focus will be used on Concentrated Study as described above.

2nd Degree Students

- Students who have earned a baccalaureate degree from an accredited institution are exempt from the General Education requirements

Degree Requirements - Pluralism and Diversity

Type
Completion Requirement

Fulfill ALL of the following requirements:

Earn at least 3 credits from the following:
- Pluralism and Diversity Requirement – Group A

A course focusing on scholarship about major practical or theoretical issues (e.g., artistic, economic, geographic, literary, political, scientific or social) that emerge from, are reflected in or are principally derived from the historical conditions, perspectives and/or intellectual traditions of non-European societies, particularly those of Africa, Asia, Latin America or those indigenous to the Americas.

AND

Earn at least 3 credits from the following:

- Pluralism and Diversity Requirement – Group B

A course focusing on scholarship about major practical or theoretical issues (e.g., artistic, economic, geographic, literary, political, scientific or social) that emerge from, are reflected in or are principally derived from the historical conditions, perspectives, immigrant experiences and/or intellectual traditions of one or more of the following groups in the United States of America: African Americans, Asian Americans, Latino Americans and Native Americans.

AND

Earn at least 3 credits from the following:

- Pluralism and Diversity Requirement – Group C

A course focusing on scholarship about major practical or theoretical issues (e.g., artistic, economic, geographic, literary, political, scientific or social) that emerge from, are reflected in or are principally derived from the historical conditions, perspectives and/or intellectual traditions of women and/or issues of gender or sexual orientation.

AND

Earn at least 3 credits from the following:

- Pluralism and Diversity Requirement – Group D

A course focusing on scholarship about major practical or theoretical issues (e.g., artistic, economic, geographic, literary, political, scientific or social) that emerge from, are reflected in or are principally derived from the historical conditions, perspectives and/or intellectual traditions of Europe, including the ways in which pluralism and diversity have been addressed.

Additional Comments:
Students must complete four courses designated for the Pluralism and Diversity Requirement, one from each of four categories. The four categories of Pluralism and Diversity focus on major practical or theoretical issues that emerge from, are reflected in, or are principally derived from the historical conditions, perspectives, and/or intellectual traditions of the following:

A. Non-European societies, particularly those of Africa, Asia, Latin America, or those indigenous to the Americas;

B. One or more of the following groups in the US: African Americans, Asian Americans, Latino Americans, and Native Americans;

C. Women and/or issues of gender or sexual orientation;

D. Europe, including ways in which pluralism and diversity have been addressed.

Any one course with a Pluralism and Diversity designation can satisfy only one Pluralism and Diversity category but may also fulfill any other requirement.

Transfer Students

Transfer students must take at least two courses designated for different categories of the Pluralism and Diversity requirement. The number of courses required in Pluralism and Diversity is determined by the number of credits transferred.

CREDITS TRANSFERRED	COURSES REQUIRED
Fewer than 31	4
31 or more	2

Any one course with a Pluralism and Diversity designation can only satisfy one Pluralism and Diversity category but may also fulfill any other requirement.

2nd Degree Students

- Students who have earned a baccalaureate degree from an accredited institution are exempt from the General Education requirements

Degree Requirements - Writing Intensive

Type
Completion Requirement

Complete at least 1 course in the following course sets:

- Writing Intensive

Transfer Students

Transfer students must take at least one Writing Intensive course, designated with a “W” in the catalog, at Hunter College. The number of Writing Intensive courses required is determined by the number of credits transferred.

CREDITS TRANSFERRED	"W" COURSES REQUIRED
Fewer than 30	3
31-59	2
60 or more	1

Note: Specific sections of courses containing significant writing are listed with a W designation in the Schedule of Classes. Please note that not all sections of a course are necessarily offered with significant writing. To satisfy the Writing Requirement a section designated as W in the Schedule of Classes must be taken.

2nd Degree Students

- Students who have earned a baccalaureate degree from an accredited institution are exempt from the General Education requirements

Major Requirements - Overall

Type
Completion Requirement

Earn at least 58 credits

Major Requirements - Earth System Science Track

Program Description

A major in Geography is designed to prepare students to understand and respond to our world's changing social and natural environments using a range of quantitative, qualitative, and geospatial research methods. Students will study how social and natural systems interact using concepts of place, space, distance, location, and borders scale. They will also learn how to make (digital) maps in order to analyze and explain differences between places. Geographic knowledge and analytical skills are vital to solving the many problems our world is facing today, from consequences of climate change to geopolitical crises and migration. In addition to classroom learning, students explore urban and natural environments through our field-based classes and by doing research projects together with community advocacy groups in New York City.

Our department offers three concentration areas that Geography majors are encouraged to explore. These concentrations are: Cities and Globalization, Digital Mapping and Geographic Information Science, and Sustainability. Students are encouraged to discuss with advisors and professors in our department the course of study that best fits their interests.

See departmental website for additional information about this program.

Earn at least 3 credits from the following:

- Flexible Core Individual and Society Humanities

Additional Comments:
Students may take no more than two courses from one department or program to fulfill categories Common Core.

Transfer Students

- Transfer students who have earned an AA/AS degree from an accredited institution, including CUNY, and who matriculated in fall 2013 and after will have fulfilled the Common Core.
- For all other CUNY transfer students, any unmet Common Core requirements must be completed while matriculated at Hunter.
- Non-CUNY transfer students without an AA/AS degree should confer with their adviser to determine whether they have met CCC requirements.

2nd Degree Students

- Students who have earned a baccalaureate degree from an accredited institution are exempt from the General Education requirements

Hunter Core Requirement

Several courses within this major may fulfill parts of the Hunter Core Requirement (CUNY Common Core Requirement, Concurrent Requirements). When selecting courses, it may be to a student's advantage to choose courses that count toward the Hunter Core Requirement and also advance the student on the path to the major. Details on the Hunter Core Requirement can be found here: General Education - Effective Fall 2019

In the case of the Geography major, the courses that meet CCC are:

Course	CUNY Common Core Requirement
GEOG10100 People and their Environment PGEOG13000 Weather and Climate (STEM)	Individual and Society (SS) Scientific World -or- Life and Physical Sciences
GEOG15000 World Regions Global Context	World Cultures and Global Issues
GEOL10000 Introduction to Geology	Scientific World
GEOL10100 Introductory Geology Lab	Life and Physical Sciences
GEOL10500 Intro to Envir Studies GEOL18000 Introduction to Oceanography	Scientific World Scientific World

Degree Requirements - College Option/Hunter Focus

Type
Completion Requirement

Earn at least 12 credits
The Hunter Focus consists of 12 credits total. The composition of these credits will vary depending on the student's matriculation status and language proficiency. All students are required to complete the Foreign Language requirement; after that is met, students begin Concentrated Study.

Exceptions:

- Students in the School of Nursing may fulfill their entire 12 credits of Hunter Focus by taking three "STEM variant" science courses in addition to the STEM courses used to fulfill the Common Core.
- Students with a joint major in Education may fulfill their entire 12 credits with courses in Education.

Hunter Focus: Foreign Language

Students must attain fourth-semester proficiency in a foreign language. For students with no prior language courses, this proficiency typically consists of completing four courses or a total of 12 credits. Students who have prior language courses, including those from high school, should consult an adviser. Students may apply only one course at each level (Elementary level 1, Elementary level 2, Intermediate level 3, and Intermediate level 4) toward the Hunter Focus. Intensive courses can be used to satisfy the two-course sequence at the Elementary and at the Intermediate levels.

Hunter Focus: Concentrated Study

Once students have completed the Foreign Language requirement, any credits remaining from the 12 required for the Hunter Focus will be used on Concentrated Study. Concentrated Study refers to courses that fulfill requirements for a declared minor, a second major or a certificate. The number of credits required for Concentrated Study ranges from 0-12 and is determined by the number of credits in a foreign language a student must take.

CREDITS OF FOREIGN LANGUAGE NEEDED	CREDITS OF CONCENTRATED STUDY NEEDED
0	12
3	9
6	6
9	3*

For students who matriculated prior to fall 2019, these three credits are waived.*

For students who matriculated in fall 2019 or after, and who do not also complete a second major, minor, or certificate program, these three credits shall be from a course, at the 200-level or above, on a topic related to the language used for the Foreign Language requirement, in the target language or in English translation.*

Transfer Students

All transfer students must complete the Hunter Focus. For students who first matriculated in an associate program, the number of credits required in the Hunter Focus varies with the number of credits transferred.

CREDITS/DEGREES TRANSFERRED	CREDITS/REQUIRED
Fewer than 30	12
30 or more, without an AA/AS degree	9
AA/AS degree	6

Students who first matriculate in a baccalaureate program must complete 12 credits of Hunter Focus. Any "College Option" credits completed at another CUNY senior college will be applied to the Hunter Focus.

Hunter Focus: Foreign Language

Transfer students must reach or work toward fourth-semester proficiency in a foreign language. The number of credits needed to complete the Foreign Language requirement is determined by the student's transfer status, as defined above, and language proficiency at the time of matriculation. Students who have prior language courses, including those from high school, should consult an adviser.

Hunter Focus: Concentrated Study

Once transfer students have completed the Foreign Language requirement, any credits remaining from the Hunter Focus will be used on Concentrated Study as described above.

2nd Degree Students

- Students who have earned a baccalaureate degree from an accredited institution are exempt from the General Education requirements

Degree Requirements - Pluralism and Diversity

Type
Completion Requirement

Fulfill ALL of the following requirements:

Earn at least 3 credits from the following:
- Pluralism and Diversity Requirement – Group A

A course focusing on scholarship about major practical or theoretical issues (e.g., artistic, economic, geographic, literary, political, scientific or social) that emerge from, are reflected in or are principally derived from the historical conditions, perspectives and/or intellectual traditions of non-European societies, particularly those of Africa, Asia, Latin America or those indigenous to the Americas.

AND

Earn at least 3 credits from the following:
- Pluralism and Diversity Requirement – Group B

A course focusing on scholarship about major practical or theoretical issues (e.g., artistic, economic, geographic, literary, political, scientific or social) that emerge from, are reflected in or are principally derived from the historical conditions, perspectives, immigrant experiences and/or intellectual traditions of one or more of the following groups in the United States of America: African Americans, Asian Americans, Latino Americans and Native Americans.

AND

Earn at least 3 credits from the following:
- Pluralism and Diversity Requirement – Group C

A course focusing on scholarship about major practical or theoretical issues (e.g., artistic, economic, geographic, literary, political, scientific or social) that emerge from, are reflected in or are principally derived from the historical conditions, perspectives and/or intellectual traditions of women and/or issues of gender or sexual orientation.

AND

Earn at least 3 credits from the following:
- Pluralism and Diversity Requirement – Group D

A course focusing on scholarship about major practical or theoretical issues (e.g., artistic, economic, geographic, literary, political, scientific or social) that emerge from, are reflected in or are principally derived from the historical conditions, perspectives and/or intellectual traditions of Europe, including the ways in which pluralism and diversity have been addressed.

Additional Comments:
Students must complete four courses designated for the Pluralism and Diversity Requirement, one from each of four categories. The four categories of Pluralism and Diversity focus on major practical or theoretical issues that emerge from, are reflected in, or are principally derived from the historical conditions, perspectives, and/or intellectual traditions of the following:

A. Non-European societies, particularly those of Africa, Asia, Latin America, or those indigenous to the Americas;

B. One or more of the following groups in the US: African Americans, Asian Americans, Latino Americans, and Native Americans;

C. Women and/or issues of gender or sexual orientation;

D. Europe, including ways in which pluralism and diversity have been addressed.

Any one course with a Pluralism and Diversity designation can satisfy only one Pluralism and Diversity category but may also fulfill any other requirement.

Transfer Students

Transfer students must take at least two courses designated for different categories of the Pluralism and Diversity requirement. The number of courses required in Pluralism and Diversity is determined by the number of credits transferred.

CREDITS TRANSFERRED	COURSES REQUIRED
Fewer than 31	4
31 or more	2

Any one course with a Pluralism and Diversity designation can only satisfy one Pluralism and Diversity category but may also fulfill any other requirement.

2nd Degree Students

- Students who have earned a baccalaureate degree from an accredited institution are exempt from the General Education requirements

Degree Requirements - Writing Intensive

Type
Completion Requirement

Complete at least 1 course in the following course sets:
- Writing Intensive

Transfer Students

Transfer students must take at least one Writing Intensive course, designated with a "W" in the catalog, at Hunter College. The number of Writing Intensive courses required is determined by the number of credits transferred.

CREDITS TRANSFERRED	"W" COURSES REQUIRED
Fewer than 30	3
31-59	2
60 or more	1

Note: Specific sections of courses containing significant writing are listed with a W designation in the Schedule of Classes. Please note that not all sections of a course are necessarily offered with significant writing. To satisfy the Writing Requirement a section designated as W in the Schedule of Classes must be taken.

SPDAS-CERT - Spatial Data Science

General

HEGIS Code
0701.00

CIP Code
30.7001

Program Description

The Undergraduate SDS Certificate will equip students majoring in various disciplines with the knowledge and skills for spatial data analysis. They will learn the foundations of geospatial technologies from spatial data processing to the spatial analytic models used to find solutions to the world's most pressing problems. The Certificate provides Hunter College students with a unique skillset that will increase their competitive advantage in the job market. It will also provide a new spatial analytical approach to their core discipline.

Program Outcomes

Students who complete the Certificate program should be able to:

1. Describe the fundamental principles of Geographic Information Science.
2. Transform geographic problems from their external model to their conceptual model and computational model.
3. Implement these models in GIS, web mapping software or other geospatial tools software.
4. Demonstrate competency in developing geographic models using the Python programing language.
5. Understand and implement machine learning algorithms and how they relate to geospatial problems.

Courses

GEOG 10100 - People and their Environment (3 cr)

General

Course Title
People and their Environment

Catalog Description
The science of geography uses an earth systems approach and geographic concepts of place, space, scale, location, regions, and borders to examine human-environment interactions. Students will study a broad range of topics, from plate tectonics and climate change to global patterns of population, culture, food security, urbanization, migration, and economy. The overarching emphasis will be on the relationships among these processes. In addition, students will learn how to interpret maps and become familiar with uses of geospatial technologies in research and many aspects of everyday life.

Course Title
World Regions in Global Context

Catalog Description
This course draws on and explores the concept of the geographic region as a way to organize and understand our fast -changing and interconnected world. Geographic concepts (e.g., space, place, distance, scale, borders, and regions) areused to study environmental, economic, social, and political conditions and identify key concerns in the culturally diverse world. The course will examine geographic world regions (e.g., South America, Europe, the Middle East, Sub-Saharan Africa, and others), connections in and between these regions, and how these regions and their populations interact as parts of a global system. For each world region, you will learn major historical events, specific interactions between natural environment and social systems, and their potential for and challenges to sustainable development.

Introduction to Remote Sensing

Catalog Description
Introduces remote sensing image interpretation and a basic understanding of the use of remote sensing technology in the study of environmental issues and the monitoring of Earth systems. The first half of the course focuses on aerial photography, photogrammetry and image interpretation. The second half focuses on the use of remote sensing in Earth system sciences. Extensive lab exercises include practical assignments and computer-based analysis of remote sensing images. Students will learn basic image interpretation and some web-based image processing skills through various lab exercises.

General

Course Title
Quantitative Methods in Geography

Catalog Description
This course introduces common statistical methods for geographic research. Students will learn how to interpret and use these techniques effectively and appropriately. It reviews information from introductory statistics courses and applies it to examples from physical and social sciences. The course focuses on the application of techniques rather than the derivation of equations. It will prepare students for more advanced statistical and spatial analysis topics covered in other courses.

Course Title
Spatial Data Science 1

Catalog Description
This practical hands-on course will introduce you to some of the main programming concepts and techniques relevant to computational methods of Spatial Data Science. The Course starts with the basics of algorithms, and work through examples of reading and writing pseudocode for some general, mathematical, and spatial operations. We will then dive into the nuts and bolts of Python as a first language and learn how to translate some basic operations into running code, in the context of representing and processing geospatial data. The class will also review some of the most commonly-used open- and closed-source Python libraries for spatial programming.

PGEOG 25000 - Earth Systems Science 1 (3.5 cr)

General

Course Title
Earth Systems Science 1

Catalog Description
In this course students learn to think of Earth as a system of several components that interact with each other, sometimes in very complicated ways. The components of the Earth system that will be considered include the atmosphere, the hydrosphere, the lithosphere, and the biosphere. While each of these components can, and should, be studied in more detail in separate courses, here the focus is on interactions between them.

German Department

Overview

The mission of the German Department is to teach German language, culture, and civilization in a professional, research-based manner, to help students develop a foundational knowledge of the German cultural and literary canon, to develop intercultural awareness and foster understanding between the Hunter as well as New York City communities and the German-speaking countries, and to create and propagate knowledge and understanding about German language, literature and culture and also about the teaching of German language, literature and culture locally, regionally, and nationally. The department offers courses in the language, literature, and culture of German-speaking countries that are designed and sequenced to guide students from their current language proficiency levels through well-defined stages of proficiency in production and comprehension so that students will reach college-level literacy in German and excel in the field of German studies. Students who complete the elementary and intermediate courses can expect to reach the ability to function in everyday situations in German-speaking environments and to have a solid base for the upper-level study of German language, literature and culture. Students who complete advanced language, literature, and culture courses will gain an understanding and appreciation of German culture and civilization, past and present; they will comprehend spoken and written German to the level of understanding the classics of German prose, drama, and poetry; and will either have reached or will be well on their way towards reaching the linguistic and cultural capacity for engaging in intellectual discourse in written and spoken German.

What can I do with my degree in German?

Germany is the third-largest economy in the world, and German is the first language of over 95 million people worldwide. Students with a foundation in the language, literature, history, and intellectual revolutions of Germany are prepared to enter a wide variety of vocations. Majors continue to postgraduate study in Germany and the United States, enter law schools and other graduate programs and work in fields as diverse as environmental policy, journalism, arts management, consulting, and engineering, as well as in governmental and nongovernmental organizations and businesses. Some of our recent graduates have been hired by the Manhattan branches of the Goethe Institute and the German American Chamber of Commerce.

Learning Outcomes: German BA

1. Use learned language to engage in numerous types of conversations in German.
2. Demonstrate intercultural awareness.
3. Identify main ideas and supporting details of informational and literary texts in German.
4. Compose written correspondence descriptions narrations summaries and analysis in German on a variety of topics.
5. Examine and discuss important works of German prose drama and poetry.
6. Demonstrate an understanding of German culture and civilization past and present.
7. Demonstrate foundational knowledge of the German cultural and literary canon.

Foreign Language Requirement

Students who begin German as a new language will fulfill the foreign language requirement by taking 12 credits in the elementary/intermediate language sequence: GERMN 10100-GERMN 10200 (or GERMN 10300), GERMN 20100-GERMN 20200 (or GERMN 20300). Students who enter with one or more years of high school German must take all the credits they need so that they can pass GERMN 20200 (or GERMN 20300). Students who enter with four years of high school German will be exempted from the foreign language requirement (see the General Education - Effective Fall 2019 section of this catalog).

Placement

Students who have some knowledge of German should consult with one of the departmental advisers or the chair for placement in a class that is appropriate for them.

GERMAN-MIN - German

General

CIP Code
16.0501

Program Description
The minor in German aims to help students develop their linguistic and cultural knowledge so that they can perform at the level of Intermediate High on the ACTFL scale (1+ on the ILR scale) or at the level B1 according to the Common European Framework in speaking listening, reading, writing, and cultural knowledge. Typical assessments include student participation in internationally recognized B1 exams and periodic Oral Proficiency Interviews. Students who minor in German have gone on to graduate school in fields like comparative literature, library science, law, and international relations. They have found work in consulting agencies and in prestigious publishing houses.

P/NC Policy: Only a letter grade (A, B, C, D, including + or -) will be accepted by the department for any courses applied to the minor. Students cannot receive a grade of P/NC in any course used for the minor.

Exceptions:

- Students in the School of Nursing may fulfill their entire 12 credits of Hunter Focus by taking three “STEM variant” science courses in addition to the STEM courses used to fulfill the Common Core.
- Students with a joint major in Education may fulfill their entire 12 credits with courses in Education.

Hunter Focus: Foreign Language

Students must attain fourth-semester proficiency in a foreign language. For students with no prior language courses, this proficiency typically consists of completing four courses or a total of 12 credits. Students who have prior language courses, including those from high school, should consult an adviser. Students may apply only one course at each level (Elementary level 1, Elementary level 2, Intermediate level 3, and Intermediate level 4) toward the Hunter Focus. Intensive courses can be used to satisfy the two-course sequence at the Elementary and at the Intermediate levels.

Hunter Focus: Concentrated Study

Once students have completed the Foreign Language requirement, any credits remaining from the 12 required for the Hunter Focus will be used on Concentrated Study. Concentrated Study refers to courses that fulfill requirements for a declared minor, a second major or a certificate. The number of credits required for Concentrated Study ranges from 0-12 and is determined by the number of credits in a foreign language a student must take.

CREDITS OF FOREIGN LANGUAGE NEEDED	CREDITS OF CONCENTRATED STUDY NEEDED
0	12
3	9
6	6
9	3*

For students who matriculated prior to fall 2019, these three credits are waived.*

For students who matriculated in fall 2019 or after, and who do not also complete a second major, minor, or certificate program, these three credits shall be from a course, at the 200-level or above, on a topic related to the language used for the Foreign Language requirement, in the target language or in English translation.*

Transfer Students

All transfer students must complete the Hunter Focus. For students who first matriculated in an associate program, the number of credits required in the Hunter Focus varies with the number of credits transferred.

CREDITS/DEGREES TRANSFERRED	CREDITS/REQUIRED
Fewer than 30	12
30 or more, without an AA/AS degree	9
AA/AS degree	6

Students who first matriculate in a baccalaureate program must complete 12 credits of Hunter Focus. Any “College Option” credits completed at another CUNY senior college will be applied to the Hunter Focus.

Hunter Focus: Foreign Language

Transfer students must reach or work toward fourth-semester proficiency in a foreign language. The number of credits needed to complete the Foreign Language requirement is determined by the student’s transfer status, as defined above, and language proficiency at the time of matriculation. Students who have prior language courses, including those from high school, should consult an adviser.

Hunter Focus: Concentrated Study

Once transfer students have completed the Foreign Language requirement, any credits remaining from the Hunter Focus will be used on Concentrated Study as described above.

2nd Degree Students

- Students who have earned a baccalaureate degree from an accredited institution are exempt from the General Education requirements

Degree Requirements - Pluralism and Diversity

Type
Completion Requirement

Fulfill ALL of the following requirements:

Earn at least 3 credits from the following:
- Pluralism and Diversity Requirement – Group A

A course focusing on scholarship about major practical or theoretical issues (e.g., artistic, economic, geographic, literary, political, scientific or social) that emerge from, are reflected in or are principally derived from the historical conditions, perspectives and/or intellectual traditions of non-European societies, particularly those of Africa, Asia, Latin America or those indigenous to the Americas.

AND

Earn at least 3 credits from the following:
- Pluralism and Diversity Requirement – Group B

A course focusing on scholarship about major practical or theoretical issues (e.g., artistic, economic, geographic, literary, political, scientific or social) that emerge from, are reflected in or are principally derived from the historical conditions, perspectives, immigrant experiences and/or intellectual traditions of one or more of the following groups in the United States of America: African Americans, Asian Americans, Latino Americans and Native Americans.

AND

Earn at least 3 credits from the following:
- Pluralism and Diversity Requirement – Group C

A course focusing on scholarship about major practical or theoretical issues (e.g., artistic, economic, geographic, literary, political, scientific or social) that emerge from, are reflected in or are principally derived from the historical conditions, perspectives and/or intellectual traditions of women and/or issues of gender or sexual orientation.

History Department

Overview

History is the record of human experience. Its study is a first step in learning about ourselves and our society — about economics and politics, psychology and sociology, mathematics and science, the arts and the humanities. Beyond the purely practical consideration of a profession, the study of history is exciting in its own right. The History Department offers courses in the history of the United States, the ancient world, medieval and modern Europe, Russia, Jewish studies, the Middle East and Islamic world, Latin America, Africa, East Asia and South Asia, as well as many comparative topics in political, intellectual, and world history.

What can I do with my degree in History?

For students whose undergraduate major is history, career opportunities are numerous and varied. Medical, law and other professional schools favor applicants with history majors because of their broad background and research skills. Moreover, while teaching has long been a popular goal for history majors, positions in government (local, state and national), publishing, museums, public relations, advertising, media/communications, business and management also await those students whose human perspective, critical thinking skills, and intellectual discipline have been developed in history classes.

Learning Outcomes: History BA

1. To apply historical methods such as continuity change over time context causation and corroboration in order to understand features of the human experience in the past.

2. To distinguish and analyze the culturally and politically constructed nature of individual and group identities in specific historical contexts and as they change over time.
3. To identify and evaluate both the role that individuals play in shaping history and the roles of broader forces of historical change (such as social intellectual and ideological movements cultural developments and economic trends) and to appreciate the relationship between all these factors and political change.
4. To analyze history across multiple centuries and major geographical regions and to be able to apply such analysis comparatively when appropriate.
5. To plan research and create papers using primary and secondary sources, appropriate citations, and language that can withstand critical assessment for thesis argumentation and content.

Program Description

The study of the human past expands our understanding of what it is to be human. History courses may offer overviews that sweep across centuries and continents, or focus on the history of a nation, a demographic group, a social, environmental, political, economic or cultural topic, or even the life and times of a single individual, but all are united in seeking to inculcate an evidence-based critically-informed understanding of our past. Historical knowledge is key to understanding continuity and change in societies, in systems of knowledge and belief, in technologies, and in cultures. History students learn to find and interpret primary sources, and to rigorously analyze the historical writings of others. Working with department faculty students learn to plan, research and write historical papers of their own, to craft convincing arguments and to convey them in effective and compelling language. This knowledge and these skills are valued within and without the field of academic history, and history graduates have gone on to successful careers in business, government, public interest fields, journalism, and other professions, or have continued their studies in graduate or law schools.

P/NC Policy: Only a letter grade (A, B, C, D, including + or -) will be accepted by the department in the required courses for the major. Students cannot receive a grade of P/NC in any course used for the major.

Transfer Students

- Transfer students who have earned an AA/AS degree from an accredited institution, including CUNY, and who matriculated in fall 2013 and after will have fulfilled the Common Core.
- For all other CUNY transfer students, any unmet Common Core requirements must be completed while matriculated at Hunter.
- Non-CUNY transfer students without an AA/AS degree should confer with their adviser to determine whether they have met CCC requirements.

2nd Degree Students

- Students who have earned a baccalaureate degree from an accredited institution are exempt from the General Education requirements

Degree Requirements - College Option/Hunter Focus

Type
Completion Requirement

Earn at least 12 credits
The Hunter Focus consists of 12 credits total. The composition of these credits will vary depending on the student's matriculation status and language proficiency. All students are required to complete the Foreign Language requirement; after that is met, students begin Concentrated Study.

Exceptions:

- Students in the School of Nursing may fulfill their entire 12 credits of Hunter Focus by taking three "STEM variant" science courses in addition to the STEM courses used to fulfill the Common Core.
- Students with a joint major in Education may fulfill their entire 12 credits with courses in Education.

Hunter Focus: Foreign Language

Students must attain fourth-semester proficiency in a foreign language. For students with no prior language courses, this proficiency typically consists of completing four courses or a total of 12 credits. Students who have prior language courses, including those from high school, should consult an adviser. Students may apply only one course at each level (Elementary level 1, Elementary level 2, Intermediate level 3, and Intermediate level 4) toward the Hunter Focus. Intensive courses can be used to satisfy the two-course sequence at the Elementary and at the Intermediate levels.

Hunter Focus: Concentrated Study

Once students have completed the Foreign Language requirement, any credits remaining from the 12 required for the Hunter Focus will be used on Concentrated Study. Concentrated Study refers to courses that fulfill requirements for a declared minor, a second major or a certificate. The number of credits required for Concentrated Study ranges from 0-12 and is determined by the number of credits in a foreign language a student must take.

CREDITS OF FOREIGN LANGUAGE NEEDED	CREDITS OF CONCENTRATED STUDY NEEDED
0	12
3	9
6	6
9	3*

For students who matriculated prior to fall 2019, these three credits are waived.*

For students who matriculated in fall 2019 or after, and who do not also complete a second major, minor, or certificate program, these three credits shall be from a course, at the 200-level or above, on a topic related to the language used for the Foreign Language requirement, in the target language or in English translation.*

Transfer Students

All transfer students must complete the Hunter Focus. For students who first matriculated in an associate program, the number of credits required in the Hunter Focus varies with the number of credits transferred.

CREDITS/DEGREES TRANSFERRED	CREDITS/REQUIRED
Fewer than 30	12
30 or more, without an AA/AS degree	9
AA/AS degree	6

Students who first matriculate in a baccalaureate program must complete 12 credits of Hunter Focus. Any "College Option" credits completed at another CUNY senior college will be applied to the Hunter Focus.

Hunter Focus: Foreign Language

Transfer students must reach or work toward fourth-semester proficiency in a foreign language. The number of credits needed to complete the Foreign Language requirement is determined by the student's transfer status, as defined above, and language proficiency at the time of matriculation. Students who have prior language courses, including those from high school, should consult an adviser.

Hunter Focus: Concentrated Study

Once transfer students have completed the Foreign Language requirement, any credits remaining from the Hunter Focus will be used on Concentrated Study as described above.

2nd Degree Students

- Students who have earned a baccalaureate degree from an accredited institution are exempt from the General Education requirements

Degree Requirements - Pluralism and Diversity

Type
Completion Requirement

Fulfill ALL of the following requirements:

Earn at least 3 credits from the following:
- Pluralism and Diversity Requirement – Group A

A course focusing on scholarship about major practical or theoretical issues (e.g., artistic, economic, geographic, literary, political, scientific or social) that emerge from, are reflected in or are principally derived from the historical conditions, perspectives and/or intellectual traditions of non-European societies, particularly those of Africa, Asia, Latin America or those indigenous to the Americas.

AND

Earn at least 3 credits from the following:

- Pluralism and Diversity Requirement – Group B

A course focusing on scholarship about major practical or theoretical issues (e.g., artistic, economic, geographic, literary, political, scientific or social) that emerge from, are reflected in or are principally derived from the historical conditions, perspectives, immigrant experiences and/or intellectual traditions of one or more of the following groups in the United States of America: African Americans, Asian Americans, Latino Americans and Native Americans.

AND

Earn at least 3 credits from the following:

- Pluralism and Diversity Requirement – Group C

A course focusing on scholarship about major practical or theoretical issues (e.g., artistic, economic, geographic, literary, political, scientific or social) that emerge from, are reflected in or are principally derived from the historical conditions, perspectives and/or intellectual traditions of women and/or issues of gender or sexual orientation.

AND

Earn at least 3 credits from the following:

- Pluralism and Diversity Requirement – Group D

A course focusing on scholarship about major practical or theoretical issues (e.g., artistic, economic, geographic, literary, political, scientific or social) that emerge from, are reflected in or are principally derived from the historical conditions, perspectives and/or intellectual traditions of Europe, including the ways in which pluralism and diversity have been addressed.

Additional Comments:
Students must complete four courses designated for the Pluralism and Diversity Requirement, one from each of four categories. The four categories of Pluralism and Diversity focus on major practical or theoretical issues that emerge from, are reflected in, or are principally derived from the historical conditions, perspectives, and/or intellectual traditions of the following:

A. Non-European societies, particularly those of Africa, Asia, Latin America, or those indigenous to the Americas;

B. One or more of the following groups in the US: African Americans, Asian Americans, Latino Americans, and Native Americans;

C. Women and/or issues of gender or sexual orientation;

D. Europe, including ways in which pluralism and diversity have been addressed.

Any one course with a Pluralism and Diversity designation can satisfy only one Pluralism and Diversity category but may also fulfill any other requirement.

Transfer Students

Transfer students must take at least two courses designated for different categories of the Pluralism and Diversity requirement. The number of courses required in Pluralism and Diversity is determined by the number of credits transferred.

CREDITS TRANSFERRED	COURSES REQUIRED
Fewer than 31	4
31 or more	2

Any one course with a Pluralism and Diversity designation can only satisfy one Pluralism and Diversity category but may also fulfill any other requirement.

2nd Degree Students

- Students who have earned a baccalaureate degree from an accredited institution are exempt from the General Education requirements

Degree Requirements - Writing Intensive

Type
Completion Requirement

Complete at least 1 course in the following course sets:

- Writing Intensive

Transfer Students

CREDITS TRANSFERRED	"W" COURSES REQUIRED
Fewer than 30	3
31-59	2
60 or more	1

Note: Specific sections of courses containing significant writing are listed with a W designation in the Schedule of Classes. Please note that not all sections of a course are necessarily offered with significant writing. To satisfy the Writing Requirement a section designated as W in the Schedule of Classes must be taken.

2nd Degree Students

- Students who have earned a baccalaureate degree from an accredited institution are exempt from the General Education requirements

Major Requirements - Overall

Type
Completion Requirement

Earn at least 30 credits

- HIST 30000 - Historical Research
- HIST 40000 - Historical Research Honors

A minimum grade of C is required to receive credit for HIST30000 Historical Research/HIST40000 Historical Research Honors.

Geographic Distribution

Within the requirements for the major students must complete: 3 credits at the 200-level or above of United States history and 12 credits (four courses) distributed across four of the following six geographic fields:
(a) Africa
(b) Asia
(c) Europe (includes Russia and the USSR)
(d) Latin America and the Caribbean
(e) Middle East
(f) World

Chronological Distribution

Within the requirements for the major (exclusive of HIST30000 Historical Research) students must also complete a minimum of 3 credits in a course that is largely focused on years prior to 1815:

- If the course is at the 100-level, it must cover material that is entirely pre-1815.
- If the course is at the 200-level or higher, the majority of the material in it must be pre-1815.

Teacher Education Pathway

Students planning to teach this subject in grades 7-12 should look at the School of Education: Program List for information about their programs that lead to the recommendation for New York State Initial Certification required to be a lead teacher in NYS public schools.

Major Requirements - Honors

Type
Completion Requirement

Honors in History

Students will be eligible for honors in history upon the completion of all of the requirements for the major (including HIST30000 Historical Research) with a 3.5 GPA and a 3.0 cumulative GPA at the time of graduation. In order to receive honors students may complete a portion of their major requirements in one of the following ways. (Choose one of the following options 1, 2 or 3):

1. completing HIST30000 Historical Research with a grade of B or better in lieu of HIST30000 Historical Research, which is required for the major
2. completing 3 credits with a grade of B or better in an honors seminar, problems course, or tutorial (with departmental permission) in lieu of one of their 300-level or higher courses required for the major. Such seminars, honors courses, or tutorial options include:
    - HIST48300 Prob in Am Hist-Hnr
    - HIST48400 Problems in History (Honors)
    - HIST48500 Prob Nonwest His Hnr
    - HIST49300 Indiv Tutorial Research Proj
      Note: the student must still complete HIST30000 Historical Research or HIST40000 Historical Research Honors
3. completing a graduate-level course (with special permission from the instructor) with a grade of B or better in lieu of one of their 300- level or higher courses required for the major. Note: the student must still complete HIST30000 Historical Research or HIST40000 Historical Research Honors. Eligible students should apply for honors at the time they file for graduation. Applications are available from the department.

Requirements

Simple Requirements

(No Requirement Levels)

Minor Requirements - Overall

Type
Completion Requirement

Earn at least 12 credits

Earn a minimum C of 2.0

Additional Comments:

- Students are advised to declare their minor by the beginning of the upper junior semester, but must do it prior to their final semester (that of graduation).
- Declaration requires a planning session with the History Undergraduate Advisor and completion of the Major/Minor Declaration Form (to be obtained from the One Stop)
- Courses taken for a grade of Credit/No Credit will not count toward the minor.

Minor Requirements - Required Courses

Type
Completion Requirement

Courses must be distributed in at least two geographic fields, i.e. at least one course (3 credits) must be taken in a geographic area different from the other three. (Currently, the geographic areas are defined as U.S., European and World/Non-Western.)

Additional Comments:

- At least two courses (6 credits) must be at the 300-level or above. Internships do not count toward completion of the minor, although students completing the minor may elect to include an internship as an additional course. Independent studies (tutorials) and HIST300 are available only to History Majors and, thus, do not count toward the minor.
- At least two of the courses (or 6 credits) must be taken in the History Department at Hunter College. Courses taken in other disciplines will not count toward the minor unless cross-listed and taken under the appropriate HIST course code. Transfer courses must beapproved by the History Undergraduate Advisor.
- There are no prerequisites for the minor, although certain courses may have their own prerequisites.
- P/NC Policy: Only a letter grade (A, B, C, D, including + or -) will be accepted by the department in the required courses for the minor. Students cannot receive a grade of P/NC in any course used for the minor.

HIST 25003 - The World of the Bible (3 cr)

General

Course Title
The World of the Bible

Catalog Description
The Hebrew Bible (the Christian Old Testament) is a library of works that reflect much more than one thousand years of ancient Jewish history that has attained immense spiritual authority in history and still in our time. The Bible is a collection of many writings -- narratives, laws, poetry of various kinds, prophetic oracles, proverbs, reflections on life, wisdom, etc. These works were influenced by almost all the ancient civilizations of the Middle East from Mesopotamia and Egypt to the Greeks and Romans. Biblical writing relates to many great themes of human self-exploration: why there is a universe at all, what is the goal of history and why it full of turmoil, what are the supreme values, the meaning of collective and individual existence -- and suffering, the relation of faith, revelation, and spiritual redemption. Biblical authors were reacting not only to internal problems of the people of Israel. They not only borrowed from the surrounding cultures but viewed them critically. A historical concern of the course is how the biblical writings came in to be written down against a background of social turmoil, military upheavals, and power politics. We will also discuss how the Hebrew Bible became a ground of ancient Christianity and rabbinic Judaism (and indirectly Islam). Study of "the biblical world" is almost the study of world history in miniature. No prior religious knowledge is required. A student who does have some background should find it challenged by the historical analysis of this course.
